COTTON MEN GIVE REVIEW OF INDUSTRY AT MEETINGS

Anti-Adulteration And Millowners Bodies Hold Session

PROGRESS MADE

University Of Nanking Man Submits Report On Huge Task

Conditions of interest in general commercial circles and of particular interest to all engaged in textile industries were reviewed yesterday in addresses given at meetings of The Cotton Millowners Association of China and The Cotton Anti-Adulteration Association, held in the new Jardine-Matheson Building on The Bund.

Aside from the addresses given by Mr. Charles Beswick, who is Chairman of both organisations, of particular importance is a report rendered by Mr. John B. Griffing of the University of Nanking where for the past three years the huge task of improving and extending cotton growing in China has been carried forward and in meeting with a large measure of success.

Represented in the two organisations are the leading cotton mill plants of Shanghai, including The Ewo Cotton Mills, the Loau Kung Mow Cotton Spinning and Weaving Company, The Oriental Cotton Spinning Company, The Shanghai Cotton Manufacturing Company, the Nagai Wata Kaisha Company, The Anglo-Chinese Cotton Manufacturing Company, and the Heng Foong Cotton Manufacturing Company.

Present at the meetings were besides the Chairman Messrs. L. M. Beytagh, J. A. Moller, R. J. McNicol, K. Otani, G. Okada, I. Ishihara, E. F. Hardman and R. J. McNicol.

FIRST ADDRESS

The first address at the meeting of the Cotton Millowners Association was as follows:

The Report and Statement of Accounts having been in your hands for some days, I will, with your permission, take them as read.

The only item in the accounts that calls for any comment is the payment of $2,350 of our funds to the University of Nanking for Cotton Experimental and Improvement work in accordance with the resolutions passed by the Association on June 18, 1921, and February 15, 1922.

Our guarantee to provide the means necessary for this work, in conjunction with our friends the Cotton Anti-Adulteration Association, for the space of three years, expires on February 28, 1923, and I regret having to state that it will be impossible for us, owing to lack of funds, to extend our support beyond the stipulated time.

Since the inauguration of the scheme we have been disbursing on this account more than twice our income, and it is therefore obvious that we cannot go on indefinitely.

MONEY WELL SPENT

That our money however has been well spent I am confident. Mr. Griffing, who is in charge of the work, and who is with us this afternoon to present a short report on the work, has been an indefatigable worker, and those of us who have visited the University at Nanking have been impressed by the thoroughness with which both the vast amount of laboratory and practical work have been carried out, and by the keenness of the students Mr. Griffing has been training.

Although we have to withdraw our monetary support, for the time being at any rate, I trust that our friends at the University of Nanking will be able to find some body of Chinese to help to maintain the organisation that Mr. Griffing has so patiently built up, and the far reaching benefit of which is so obvious.

Coca Cola King To Marry Beauty

ASA G. Candler, aged Atlanta, Ga., founder of the Coca Cola Company, and the richest man in the South, has announced his engagement to Mrs. Orezine de Bouchelle, New Orleans beauty, herself very wealthy. The wedding is expected to take place in San Francisco in September. Beginning with only the formula for the drink Mr. Candler, with his brothers, Bishop Warren Candler and Supreme Court Justice John Candler, of Georgia, have grown immensely rich.

Judge Lobingier Going To Tientsin For Term Of Court

Judge Charles S. Lobingier of the United States Court for China will leave for Tientsin a week from Saturday for a two week's session of the American court there. It will be the first time the American court has statin Tientsin, the only other place it functions in China, in over a year due to the absence from China of udge Lobigier. Only civil cases will be heard.

Judge Lobingier has been anxious to go to Tientsin and clean up the civil cases on the calendar there since his return, and decided yesterday that with all the criminal cases off the calendar here, and a number of the pressing civil actions disposed of he could go to Tientsin on a week fro mSaturday.

There are no criminal cases on the docket at Tientsin but several long-standing civil suits are to be disposed of. United States District Attorney Leonard G. Husar is now in Peking and Tientsin but unless some criminal charges are filed before Judge Lobingier's departure, he will return within a few days to Shanghai according to information received today.

Huston To Address Pan-Pacific Ass'n Meeting Tomorrow

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Huston of the United States accepted the invitation of the Pan Pacific Association to speak at its annual meeting tomorrow noon at the Carlton by a telegram addressed yesterday to Mr. George A. Fitch, the general secretary. Mr. Huston will arrive in Shanghai tonight by the express.

Reservations for seating accommodations for the meeting and tiffin are coming in fast. In order to save time, the committee in charge will begin the business session of the meeting "with the soup"; while beginning at one o'clock, speeches will be delivered by Secretary Huston, Mr. Alexander Hume Ford, Admiral Tsai Ting-kan and representatives of the Pacific countries.

Creditors Of Bank And Exchange May Hold Meeting Soon

Creditors of the Far Eastern bank, and of the International Gold and Silver Currency, Stock and Produce Exchange, Ltd., both of which were ordered to liquidate Saturday by the Italian Consular Court, may call a meeting to decide upon a course of action to be taken for the protection of their interests.

The Italian Consular authorities are continuing their investigation of the two institutions, the present effort being aimed to as certain the amount of assets and liabilities. Civil suits may be necessary to straighten out the affairs of the two concerns.

Irregulars Win In Irish Fighting

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 14.—A Nationalist setback is reported belatedly from Kenmare, County Kerry, which the irregulars captured after seven hours' fierce fighting. Brigadier-General O'Connor, commanding the Nationalists, and also his brother were killed and 120 of the garrison taken prisoners and subsequently liberated ten miles away after effective control of Kenmare had been secured.

London, Sept. 13—It is reported in Dublin that De Valera has had a conference with the Government Commander-in-Chief, General Mulcahy, who told him that there would be no peace until arms were surrendered.

TOKIO INSISTS UPON DAIREN AGREEMENT AT NEW PARLEYS

Russians Demand General Trade Agreement

SEEK COMPROMISE

Japanese Press Confident Obstacles Will Be Surmounted

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, September 14.—Apropos of the re-opening of the Changchun conference the newspapers here today unanimously predict that if Russia should tender any further demands when Japan has made such a considerable concession, the conference will in the end be brought to a rupture. In this connection, the Jiji writes:

"Japan has made a concession not because she has admitted that the Russian delegates are in the right, but merely complied for the sake of harmony. At this juncture, we want to express our wishes that the authorities concerned of Japan will observe the following two points:

"(1) Though the question concerning Russia as a whole may end in a failure, the question relative to the Far Eastern Republic shall be effectively solved. The latter shall not be sacrificed on account of the former.

"(2) The Japanese delegates should not touch upon important problems such as the recognition of the Soviet Government and the loan question, involving Russia, which has a serious effect upon the concert of the Powers concerned."

The "Hochi" says that as the complications of the Changchun conference have been caused by the fact that the Russian delegates are placing their principles on the basis of the principles of Soviet Russia, we cannot expect much from the present conference.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Sept. 14.—A Changchu telegram says, that in accordance with the instructions from their home Government, the Japanese delegates opened negotiations with the Russian delegates yesterday at 3 p.m. The Japanese delegates explained that Japan wished first to enter into an agreement with the Far Eastern Republic. The Russian delegates then repeated their assertion that both Soviet Russia and the Far Eastern Republic should be parties concerned of an agreement with Japan.

In order to fine a point of compromise, the telegram adds, the delegates of both countries have decided to continue the conference today. Mr. Kasajima, an administrative official of the Foreign Office, has begun to attend the conference as one of the Japanese delegates.

Tokio, Sept. 14.—A Changchun telegram of today's date says that Mr. Lenox Simpson, who was sent, along with a councillor of the Waichiaopu, by the Chinese Government to the Changchun conference, on the 12th called on Mr. Matsudaira, Chief of the Japanese delegates. Mr. Simpson said in effect that the Chinese Government is anxious about the progress of the Changchun conference. In reply, Mr. Matsudaira made an explanation at length regarding the original objects of the conference, adding that the conference will by no means infringe upon the interests of China.

Furthermore, Mr. Matsudaira, referring to the attitude of the Japanese Government, expressed Japan's sincerity. Accordingly Mr. Simpson expressed his sense of satisfaction and is reported to have wired to the Peking Government to that effect.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Changchun, Sept. 13.—The Conference resumed today. The Japanese reiterated that an agreement between Japan and the Far Eastern Republic on the basis of the draft agreement reached at Dairen should be first discussed. The Russians, however, insisted on concluding a general trade agreement between Japan and all Russia. The delegates finally agreed to meet tomorrow to endeavor to effect a compromise.

TRANSPORT TAKES PARTY OF SEVEN SENT TO BILIBID

Bowe, Boyd, Chaney and Four Others Leave To Serve Terms In Prison

Seven American prisoners, sentenced to serve terms in Bilibid prison at Manila, were sent to the Philippines prison on the United States Navy transport Abarenda under a naval guard yesterday.

The prisoners and the sentences they are to serve are:

Ralph S. Boyd—to serve 5 months from July 1 for jailbreaking.

Frank F. Bowe—to serve 2 years from July 3 for forgery.

Joe Chaney—to serve 3 years and 6 months for forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses from the date of his incarceration.

Lloyd S. Lampman—to serve 3 months and 1 day for vagrancy.

George F. Donack—to serve 3 months and 1 day for vagrancy.

Harry H. Smith—to serve 3 months and 1 day for vagrancy.

Chung Soo-na—to serve 2 years from March 28 for armed robbery.

All seven prisoners were turned over to the Commanding Officer of the Abarenda by United States Marshal Thurston R. Porter at 11:30 o'clock this morning. A naval guard, in command of an Ensign, escorted the prisoners, who were handcuffed together, from the American jail to the jetty, where they were taken aboard the transport by naval gig. Boyd, Bowe and Chaney were neatly dressed as though they were going to business instead of to occupy a cell on board the transport and then Bilibid. The Abarenda sailed at 2:30 o'clock

RECALLS JAILBREAK

Ralph S. Boyd must serve five months in Bilibid for jail breaking as a result of his escape from the American jail on July 16 in company with David Lightner, alleged Pacific Coast 'narcotic king.' Boyd was being detained at the time on charges of obtaining Tls. 30,000 under false pretences from General Chang, director of the Hunan Provincial Mint while president and general manager of R. S. Boyd and Co. He was acquitted of the charge by Judge Charles S. Lobingier, but the next day was sentenced for breaking jail. He was captured after his escape while hiding on the yacht Elka on the Pootung side of the river. Lightner, his accomplice in the escape, was captured ten days later when he was discovered on the Shipping Board liner West Faralon, and is now back in jail in Portland, Oregon, awaiting trial.

Frank F. Bowe, for several years engaged in various business enterprises in Shanghai, was sentenced to two years in Bilibid when he was found guilty of forging the name "Clifford F. Mandeville" to two insurance agency documents alleged to be for American insurance companies and selling them to Mr. C. G. King, a British insurance man, for Tls. 1,000.

USED BAD CHECKS

Joe Chaney is to serve the longest term of any of the seven on five charges of forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses. He pleaded guilty to forging the checks from the

GEN. CHEN SORRY HE HAD TO BREAK WITH SUN YAT-SEN

Could Not Be Avoided, He Says—Willing To Work With Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 14.—According to foregin telegrams from Canton, General Chen Chiung-ming has extensively reorganised the Kwantung army, as he holds the view that white disarmament is very desirable it would be unwise to venture on that course until a real agreement has been reached with the North. He is stationing one division at each of the following centers: Chaomei, Waichow, Shiuling, Shuichow and Kaolei; while the remainder of his forces are forming mobile patrolling units.

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Sept. 11.—General Chen Chiung-ming in an address to certain foreigners expressed his regrets that it was necessary for him to have had the trouble with Dr. Sun Yat-sen but it could not be avoided. He feels that a revival of Dr. Sun's influence in any great degree is now impossible in Kwantung. As for himself, he is going to devote all of his energies to a policy of civic reform for Kwantung and to cultivating friendly relations with the neighboring provinces. He hopes to make his administration a model provincial government.

In expressing himself on the question of the Peking Government, General Chen seemed to be very sympathetic and willing to meet them half way. He said that he was very keen to see the Parliament draft the Constitution and that when it was finished he would be willing to negotiate with the North. He even said, that though there were various clauses in the Constitution that he did not like particularly, he would be agreeable to passing them over by way of a compromise and accept the document as a whole. He said that he was very eager to have this National Constitution completed.

However, he was not very well pleased with the visit of Admiral Sah Ting-ping, who was endeavoring to secure the return of the Southern fleet to Northern command. These negotiations are not supposed to have got very far because of the attitude of General Chen, who is the supreme power in Canton at present.

General Chen also commented on his friendship for Tang Shao-yi. This has been known and it was only because of the opposition of General Chen's military followers that Tang Shao-yi was not elevated to office in Canton.

VICKERS LOAN

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 14.—Announcing lack of funds to meet the next coupon of the Chinese eight percent ten year Treasury notes Messrs. Vickers state that they have been informed by their Peking representative that the Chinese Government is prepared to secure these notes on the proposed increase in the Customs tariff which the International Commission is considering and that the British Minister at Peking is not able to take cognisance of this proposed arrangement as the Commission has not yet completed its investigations.

MOJAVE ARRIVES WITH AMERICAN TRADE MISSION

Head Of Party, C. H. Huston, Of Commerce Department, Due Shortly

The Coast Guard Cutter, Mojave, loaned by the U. S. Treasury Department to the Department of Commerce to take the Assistant Secretary of Commerce, Mr. C. H. Huston, on a trip around the world anchored in Shanghai last night. The trip is being made in the interest of American trade.

The official party arriving on the Mojave consists of Mr. Ward T. Bower, of the Bureau of Fisheries, Mr. David J. Davis, brother of the Secretary of Labor, who represents the immigration authorities, Lieut. J. M. Creighton, representing the Navy Department and Mr. Joe L. Baker, secretary to Mr. Huston and others.

Lieut. Com. H. G. Hamlet, of the United States Coast Guard, is in command of the Mojave.

Secretary Huston is not with the party. He is expected here tomorrow or Sunday, having left the party in Japan to make the Seoul, Mukden, Peking trip.

The Mojave left Sattle on June 20, investigated the fisheries and sealing problems along the Alaskan Coast and Behring Sea. It touched Kamchatka and at points along the Siberian coast, then went to Japan, where after spending some ten days, it steamed for Shanghai.

Belgium Demands Berlin Payments

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 14.—Belgium has requested Germany to hand over without delay two Treasury bonds, payable in gold, of 50,000,000 gold marks each on account of the reparations payments, due on August 15 and September 15, and to deposit with the National Bank of Belgium 100,000,000 gold marks.

Railway Strike In U. S. Settled, He Says

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Sept. 13.—The Secretary of Labor announces that virtual settlement of the railway strike has been reached as far as 35 percent of the companies are concerned.

(China Press Service)

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Hearings were continued on the motion of Attorney General Daugherty for a permanent injunction in the rail strike. Daugherty's witnesses enumerated 25 murders and other fatalities due to the strike.

(Reuter's Service)

The Secretary added that the railway settlement would affect 65,000 miles of track. Sixty-two railways are concerned in the settlement, which follows the lines of the tentative agreement between the shopmen's and employers' leaders for separate agreements with each railway.

TURKS MARCH ON GALLIPOLI, BRITAIN SEES COMPLICATION

Kemalists In Control At Smyrna, Refugees Cared For

PRESS AROUSED

Venice Conference On Shelf; Turks Talk Of "Bayonet Peace"

(China Press Service)

Constantinople, Sept. 13.—Large Turkish forces are reported to be marching on the Dardanelles.

The British garrison has received reinforcements of one division.

Turkish papers openly declare the Angora Government will dictate peace with the Allies at the point of the bayonet.

The Allied Headquarters has informed the Turkish chief of police that all demonstrations in honor of the Turkish victory must cease.

The Allied generals in consultation with the High Commissioner have decided that the British, French and Italian flags shall be flown in the neutral zones of Ismid and the Dardanelles.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept 13.—The English papers emphasise the danger of complications in the Balkans if the Kemalists press their extreme claims.

It is now practically certain that the Venice Conference is shelved and no conference is likely till the hostilities in Asia Minor have ceased and a full conference has been held, which will probably be in a few weeks' time, at which the terms of peace for Turkey will be settled by all the Allies, including Jugo-Slavia, Rumania and even Armenia, who are included in the Treaty of Sevres.

Telegrams today from Athens assert that Jugo-Slavia is mobilising and that she and Rumania have expressed their intention of aiding Greece in the event of a conflict in the Balkans which is not excluded from the dangerous possibilities of the near future.

It is pointed out that Thrace may easily become a storm center owing to the existence in Bulgaria of bands of irregulars, consisting of Bulgarians and Turks who preferred leaving their homes to accepting Greek citizenship under the Treaties of Neuilly and Sevres.

Their numbers have greatly increased during the last year and any incident, such as their capture of a town in Thrace, might precipitate a conflagration. Hence the forthcoming peace conference will have to deal with the most serious situation in Europe since the War.

Reuter's correspondent at Athens today reports encounters between Bulgarian comitadjis and Greek detachments at Nevrokop which resulted in the repulse of the comitadjis.

London, Sept. 13.—Reports of attacks by Turkish aviators against foreigners, especially the British are coming in. Several of those killed are of British nationality.

The French and Italian troops have been ordered to join the British fonces which are now preparing to defend Constantinople against the Kemalists.

Paris, Sept. 13.—According to reports here, the whole British press is greatly exercised over the situation in Asia Minor and the future of Constantinople.

Mohammedan associations all over the British Empire are protesting the dispatch of British warships to Smyrna.

(China Press Service)

Smyrna, (via Paris) Sept. 13.—The greatest difficulty facing the city is the repatriation of the half-million Greeks now assembled in the environs of the town.

Daily reports are coming in of the terrible atrocities perpetrated upon the countryside by the retiring Greek army, especially upon the peaceful Mohammedan population. No reprisals have been taken by the Turks so far as can be learned.

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, Sept. 13.—French press comments on the Turkish successes in Asia Minor have excited deep feeling amongst Moslems in India. They are regarded as revealing a pro-Greek tendency in British policy. A meeting of the Moslem members of the Legislature has telegraphed to Mr. Lloyd George, impressing upon him the vital need for the British Government observing strict neutrality in the Turco-Greek conflict and appealing for the restoration of Anglo-Turkish friendship, thus reuniting the British Empire with the Moslem world. They also telegraphed to the Viceroy, emphasising the desirability of the restoration of peace on terms generally favorable to Turkish ambitions.

London, Sept. 13.—The phrase, "legitimate Turkish aspirations", in the French note to Britain on the subject of the freedom of the Straits was explained by the French Charge d'Affaires in a visit which he paid to the Foreign Office today as meaning that the fresh Turkish successes must be taken into account in the making of peace. This is interpreted by the English press as meaning that France favors the return of Thrace to Turkey.

(Reuter's Service)

Smyrna, Sept. 13.—Order has been completely restored in Smyrna and the authorities have taken measures for the return of refugees to their homes. A portion of the Greek army, which was holding out on the Chesme Peninsula, has surrendered. The bulk of the Turkish army under General Kjal has arrived a Smyrna.

Rome, Sept. 13.—The Tribuna reports that the Cabinet has drafted a reply to Britain with a view to emphasising the necessity of the re-establishment of peace in the East and avoiding the spread of the conflagration. The paper thinks that the note will result in the rapid summoning of a conference.

Paris, Sept. 13.—A telegram from Athens states that the press is urging that all necessary measures shall be taken to defend Thrace to the bitter end. The army there is represented as determined to resist all comers.

Refugees from Anatolia continue to arrive in Greece and their maintenance is causing serious anxiety.

Hundreds Drowned In Chinkiang Flood

(China Press Correspondence)

Chinkiang, Sept. 13.—Chinkiang suffered one of the worst storms in its history. Trees were uprooted, walls blown down, and many mud huts destroyed. Many brick buildings were seriously damaged, chimneys were blown off and roofing blown off so as to make rooms on the east side of some of the houses untenable. In some houses the water poured down the chimney flues and flooded the floors. Kitchen fires were put out and the inhabitants were made miserable.

The worst damage occurred on the river where many native boats were sunk. It is reported that the steam launch from Yangchow to Chinkiang yesterday afternoon was sunk in the river and all on board lost. Two public ferry boats were lost and a great number of small cargo were lost. Some motor boats were washed ashore.

It is thought that the rice crop will be seriously damaged. If the dykes along the river were washed away famine conditions will prevail in this district again this year.

Today the wind is from the southwest. Yesterday the typhoon came from the North East. This has caused some of the trees that were uprooted but not entirely down to be blown up to their original positions.

Wharfs were damaged and the total amount of damage is appalling. Many trees were blown down in the British Concession, the Bund is strewn with wreckage blown in from the river. Electric lights were off last night. The suffering among the poor who have lost their homes is pitiful. Hundreds were drowned.

Tariff Board Not To Ask Likin Mandate

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Reuter's Agency is informed by the Tariff Revision Commission that there is no foundation for the statement, quoted in a Reuter telegram from Peking of yesterday's date, to the effect that the Commission had decided to request the Chinese Government to issue a mandate, announcing the abolition of likin as from January 1, 1924.

Allies Fulfil Promise Napoleon Made To Ney

Supreme Court For Birthplace Of Marshal; French Children Play In Chateau Of Ex-Kaiser

Paris, August 12.—The promise made by Napoleon to Marshal Ney has just been fulfilled by the commission governing the Saar Valley under supervision of the League of Nations. The commission has authorised the institution of a supreme court at Saarlouis, the celebrated Marshal's birthplace.

It is a town of less than 10,000 inhabitants, which was the old capital and military stronghold when the Saar was a French province.

When General Mangin passed through the Saar with his troops on the way to the Rhine some of the old inhabitants who retained French sympathies reminded him of the Emperor's promise.

"But I'm not Napoleon's successor," General Mangin replied, "and the judiciary is not my line. I will pass on the request to the proper authorities."

General Mangin was relieved of his command in the Rhineland before he could take steps in the matter, but the Saar Commission found no objection to the project, since it was not only gratifying to the town of Saarlouis, but was considered of real utility.

EX-KAISER'S CHATEAU

Four hundred children from the French devastated regions this week are disporting themselves royally where royalty did before the war wrecked so many thrones. They are on an outing at the magnificent chateau at Urville, near Metz, which belonged to former Emperor William, and which is now part of the national domain of France.

This chateau was one of the former Emperor's favorite dwelling places. It formerly contained rich French tapestries, which were removed just before the armistice, along with most of the furnishings. The chateau will be devoted to the recreation of children from northern France during summer seasons.

Six hundred thousand persons since the war have visited the grotto at Lourdes, attention to which was called by the recent accident of two trains filled with pilgrims to that celebrated faith-healing resort.

AMERICAN TOURISTS

A great many of these visitors are American tourists, who run over from Pau to witness the unique spectacle of thousands of pilgrims with candles forming a continuous procession to the grotto, singing "Ave Maria." Ten thousand people at one time chant the Credo, while dozens of crosses and figures of the Virgin Mary are lighted up on the mountaintop above the famous cathedral.

The entrances to the chapel and to the spring of healing water below the cathedral are almost blocked by piles of crutches that have been cast off by cripples who have walked away from the grotto unaided.

Several trains, each carrying from 600 to 1,000 persons, are now arriving at Lourdes daily.

LEGIONNAIRES REUNION

A movement is on foot among American veterans of the French Foreign Legion to hold a reunion of survivors in Paris in 1924 during the week of July 21, which will be the tenth anniversary of the French government's decision to accept foreign volunteers in the Legion for the duration of the war. The minimum service previously had been five years.

Survivors of the Lafayette Escadrille probably will be asked to participate in the reunion, as they are technically members of the Foreign Legion.

About one hundred and twenty American citizens enlisted in the Legion, and one-third of that number were killed in action.

Echoes From Abroad

HIGH COST OF POLYGAMY

The high cost of living is having the effect of discouraging polygamy in Zululand. Such is the report of the Danish author, Olaf Linck, who has sojourned a year in that country. A good wife costs at present eight oxen, and the market is so firm that many fathers sell their daughters on installments. The man pays one ox when the woman arrives, and one weekly. When the purchaser does not pay the installment punctually the father takes his daughter back. The husbands find this on the whole to their advantage. If a man is dissatisfied with his wife after a week or two of wedlock he simply declines to pay.

A MIRACULOUS STONE

The marriage of Lady Lockhart and Admiral Sir John de Robeck recalls traditions which, if true, should assure the couple of future happiness.

Centuries ago, it is related, a Lockhart in the time of the Crusades went to the Holy Land and captured a powerful emir. The emir's wife hastened to bring a ransom to liberate the prisoner. In Lockhart's camp she lost a certain precious stone which the victor found and set in a medal.

On returning to Scotland Lockhart discovered that the jewel possessed the power of preserving its proprietor from disease and inclining him to happiness, so the tradition goes.

In Newcastle, under the reign of Charles 1, the inhabitants, terrified by pestilence, borrowed the magical medal under a guaranty of 6,000 pounds. The plague disappeared immediately, and those who had borrowed the jewel were anxious to own it. The Lockharts rejected their offer, and thus the miraculous stone is in the hands of the wife of Admiral de Robeck.

Walter Scott is said to have utilised this tale in writing his novel, The Talisman.

ENGLISH RELIGIOUS MUSIC

The long-standing reproach that the English are not a musical people seems likely to be in part removed, through the researches of Dr. Terry, the musical director of the great Roman Catholic Cathedral at Westminster. According to "The Catholic News," he has discovered in the museums and libraries of Great Britain rich musical treasures, representative of the national genius, which for centuries had fallen into unjust oblivion. His discoveries comprise many important works of church music, emanating from English composers belonging to the period of the Tudors and the pre-Reformation. These works have been copied from the manuscripts in the libraries.

The pieces display all kinds of forms: Masses, anthema, sacred compositions, offertories, proses, liturgical hymns. They show, to the great surprise of experts, that in the Catholic epoch England possessed a school of composers whose works rival those of the most famous musicians of the continent. After the Anglican Reformation these sacred works must have found a refuge in the dusty achives of the libraries. Several among them are extracted from venerable manuscripts, the bindings of which indicate that they were used in the royal chapel when Henry VIII and his first wife, Catherine of Aragona attended the state masses.

"This discovery," adds "The Catholic News," "will have considerable effect. It makes the Westminster Cathedral the sanctuary where the national spirit will recognise itself again in some of its richest treasures. Its influence on church music in England will be incalculable; it can only be compared with the results that followed the restoration of plain chant."

IMAGINATION'S POWER

A dental review reports a most curious case which throws a bewildering light on the effects of imagination.

Several bad teeth had to be pulled for a young woman.

The operation began by anaesthetising the patient, who soon lost consciousness and gave no sign of pain during the extraction of the teeth.

But a little later it was found that owing to a small accident in the functioning of the apparatus that was employed the capsule containing the anaesthetic had not been broken.

Thus the young woman had fallen asleep, imagining that she was under the influence of chloride of ethyle.

Consular Question Raised By London

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 14.—A Colonial Office communication has been received by Lord Sydenham with reference to his question in the House of Lords during the last session as to whether Mr. Joseph Howard, the Premier of Malta, were also Consul for Japan and whether these functions were considered to be mutually compatible. The letter specifies Mr. Joseph Howard's duties as Honorary Consul and states that these are now being performed by his son, Mr. Robert Howard, and that the Japanese Minister in London, Baron Hayashi, is arranging for the recognition of the latter while his father is in the Ministry.

Writing to the Times Lord Sydenham says that he thinks that the letter is unsatisfactory and that he does not consider that the duties of the Consul of a great Power at an important naval station can be wholly of a non-diplomatic character as alleged. He says that Mr. Joseph Howard has publicly appeared in Japanese Consular uniform and that he regards this as unbecoming in the Premier of a British possession. He assumes, however, that the anomaly is ended by the hereditary succession.

Cotton Men In Session Give Review Of Industry

Manchester, and the latest returns made by China were as follows:

Cotton Spindles on July 31, 1922. 1,972,765

Cotton Consumed during 6 months ended July 31, 1922.

Chinese Cottons	394,689 Bales*
Other Cottons	272,169 Bales*
Total	666,858 Bales*

Cotton Stocks at the Mills on July 31, 1922.

Chinese Cottons	131,068 Bales*
Other Cottons	146,506 Bales*
Total	277,574 Bales*

(*Bales of 500 lbs.)

I might mention that the number of Cotton Spindles returned for China on July 31, 1920, was 1,280,036—an increase of 692,727 spindles within the past 2 years.

The Shanghai Fire Insurance Association addressed us in March of this year re the possibility of fires in Mixing Rooms being caused as a result of having concrete floors in such rooms of modern Mills, the supposition being that implements used in handling the Cotton coming in contact with the concrete floor, have caused sparks thereby igniting the loose Cotton in these compartments.

A copy of this letter was circulated among our members and the replies given were forwarded to the Fire Insurance Association. The opinions were varied but the majority of our members appeared to think that the risk of fire in this connection was not great.

In view of the sitting of the Tariff Revision Commission it was thought desirable to take steps to represent our views on the subject of Import Duty on Raw Cotton.

As you are aware, the China crop is now insufficient for the needs of the Mills in China, and therefore more imported cotton is required every year. So far little has been done by the Chinese Government to foster the cotton manufacturing industry and if we are to be faced with a further increase in duty, the effect will be an additional burden, and we therefore await with great interest the result of the Commission's deliberations upon this important matter.

If any members have any questions to ask regarding the accounts or the affairs of the Association I shall be pleased to answer them. I now beg to propose the adoption of the Report and Accounts as circulated. Seconded by Mr. Beytagh and carried unanimously.

I have pleasure in welcoming as a member of the Association the Japan-China Spinning and Weaving Co., Ltd., who have recently joined us.

Our late Chairman, Sir Edward Pearce, resigned on his departure for home on leave, but we trust he will see his way to rejoin the Committee and give us the benefit of his experience and advice on his return.

The thanks of the Association are due to Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews for kindly acting as Honorary Auditors.

The next business is the election of the Committee. Mr. J. A. Moller proposed that the following be elected:

Messrs. L. M. Beytagh, J. A. Moller, C. W. Beswick, G. Okada, K. Otani and C. C. Nieh, and that Mr. R. J. McNicol be invited to continue the duties of Honorary Secretary. This was seconded by Mr. G. Okada and carried unanimously.

SECOND ADDRESS

The address that was given by Mr. Beswick, as Chairman of the Cotton Anti-Adulteration Association at its meeting following the first meeting was as follows:

Gentlemen: Sir Edward Pearce who has been the Chairman of your Committee almost continuously from the inauguration of the Association went Home on furlough in May of this year, and we trust that on his return he will continue his activities in the former position.

The report and statement of accounts having been in your hands for the past few days, I shall, with your permission, take them as read.

The working account for the financial year which ended on 31st July last shows a net less of Tls. 12,357.00, which added to the debit balance Tls. 22,516.93 from last year leaves a loss of Tls. 34,873.93 to the carried forward on our Balance Sheet.

The Testing Fees for the year amounting to Tls. 14,669.44 are the lowest received by the Association since its inception and are about Tls. 24,000 below the average figure of former years. Owing to the small China crop the Testing House operations for the year under review were abnormally small and as you will have seen from the report in your hands, the quantity of Cotton submitted for testing during the year was less than half of that submitted for the previous year.

STAFF REDUCED

In consequence of this falling off your Committee have reduced the Testing House Staff resulting in a decrease of the amount paid for salaries and wages by Tls. 7,600.

Mr. G. E. Don, the late Manager of the Testing house, resigned on July 1 last owing to ill health. The Maritime Customs have kindly filled the vacancy by seconding Mr. J. V. Murphy to this position. I am pleased to report that the work of the Testing House has been efficiently conducted throughout the year.

With reference to the cotton cultivation and improvement work at Nanking University, the funds for which we guaranteed for 3 years in conjunction with our friends the Cotton Millowners' Association of China: Our guarantee expires next February that is, at the termination of this season's work, and it is with the utmost regret that owing to the state of our Association's finances we find ourselves unable to renew our guarantee. We are all well aware of the great benefits that have accrued to the cotton industry since the inauguration of our Testing House, and it is a source of great pride that our surplus funds should have been utilized for this most estimable work of improved cultivation, the importance of which we trust will spread far and wide, and be readily grasped by the farmers and growers for the sake of their own welfare and that of all who are interested in the industry. So soon as our funds will permit we shall be only too pleased to extend further financial assistance to the University of Nanking for this special work.

As Mr. John B. Griffing of the University of Nanking is with us this afternoon I shall not dwell upon this branch of our activities, but with your permission, call upon him to give us his report in a few minutes.

An extra charge of Tls. 2,168.48 against the past year's working has been incurred as interest on the Bank Overdraft.

During the year Tls. 22,000 Debentures were redeemed at par the difference of Tls. 361.60 being charged against Investment Fluctuation Reserve. This reserve has been further reduced by Tls 7,477.85 transferred to the Working Account, leaving a credit balance on this account of Tls 7,160.55 which represents the difference between the book and market values of your investments.

Under the present circumstances your Committee do not feel justified in recommending that any interest be paid on the Guarantee Fund this year.

There is nothing further in the accounts I think which calls for comment, but if any members wish to ask any questions regarding the accounts I shall be pleased to answer them.

I now beg to propose, Gentlemen, that the report and accounts be adopted. This was seconded by Mr. Beytagh.

The retiring committee then was re-elected for the ensuing year.

The report that was presented by Mr. Griffing is as follows:

The present season 1922 may be considered the most successful period of the three years that the University of Nanking has been promoting cotton improvement under the support of the China Cotton Anti-Adulteration Association and the Cotton Mill Owners' Association of China. There have been many phases of the work but certain specific results have been attained in each department that will be discussed in detail under their separate heads.

ACCLIMATISATION WORK

This task which by some had been announced as hopeless and of which others had asserted a three year period as inadequate, may be considered as practically accomplished. By organising what was probably the most elaborate system ever established of roguing out bad cotton plants and carefully selecting and breeding good ones, it has been possible to produce this year large seed fields that display a uniform character and quality that is superior in each case to the product with which we began. This fact has been not only demonstrated by the study of the plants in the field but by the laboratory examination of the cotton which is beginning to open, and which even though it is of the first picking, supposed to be inferior to the later product, excels in both percent and quality that which has been previously produced.

The season for growing cotton was in some respects the most difficult that we have yet faced owing to the great drought which prevailed throughout the Yangtsze Valley. This section, which is usually well watered and which last year suffered floods throughout the year, had all dry records broken with a precipitation from March 1 to August 1 of only 14.59 inches as compared with 24.00 inches last year and 24.21 inches for the average of the four years previous.

The period of greatest drought occurred in the months of March, April and May, making a most unfavorable planting period. This difficulty was more noticeable because in multiplying choice seed we do not plant thickly with subsequent thinning as in commercial plantings, but each seed is separately placed at final distance with the hope of perfect germination. At planting time, April 15 to 25 the soil was so dry that the seed lain in the ground till the first shower which was on May 25 making the crop a month late. Notwithstanding this handicap, the cotton on some of the University farms presents the best appearance from standpoint of both yield and quality of any cotton that we have yet seen in China.

Rice and other spring planted crops are almost an absolute failure for a wide radius about Nanking. Low land that produces rice is usually high priced, while the uplands upon which cotton grows are sold or rented at a much lower figure. The contrast therefore between the productive cotton fields of the University that promise a crop worth from twelve to sixteen dollars per mow with nearby rice fields where the value of the harvest is less than two dollars is an impressive demonstration to the farmers not only of the value of cotton but of its certainty.

Although some of the land of latest acquisition could not be properly prepared for cotton because of the dry spring yet over three hundred mow in all from highly selected American seed were grown which will be carefully conserved for supplying farmers on the organised pure seed center basts, or for giving a start to other stations.

TWO STEPS

The pure seed work will now resolve itself into the two steps: first, continuing the selection and improvement at the University headquarters; and second, to organise a system of pure seed maintenance and control that will conserve all pure seed produced giving the most rapid expansion possible.

In the matter of the first point, during the present year there are being grown three hundred and fifteen progeny rows from the best of last year's selected plants and ninety-five small fields from the best progeny rows of last year. Each of these fields is thus descended from a single superior plant and gives an uniform new strain of the most stable characteristics obtainable. Several very superior new strains have thus been derived, the best of which will quickly be used to replace all seed of first distributions.

Seed control may be established through arranging to buy back from the farmers in the seed the cotton that is grown from pure seed. This step will involve establishing gins and buying centers either under our direct operation or control in the communities where seed is distributed. By thus buying back the cotton the pure seed can be recovered for wider distribution in the same or other localities.

EXTENSION WORK

In the expansion program planned for this year surveys, lectures, exhibits, and conferences with gentry have been held throughout two of the largest cotton districts of Kiangsu and Anhwei with the result that the interest is already beyond our means to cope with it. Requests for co-operation in the introduction of improved seed have been made by many communities schools, and individuals in which they furnish the land and our department supplies the seed and supervision.

This campaign will be continued especially during this present cotton picking season when attention is naturally drawn to the subject and demonstration materials are at hand. The policy of growing number of plots of good American cotton by the side of main traveled highways has proved of great educational value and has created

Why a Tile Roof Leaks

The heat of summer causes the tile to expand while the cold of winter causes it to contract. Since tile is a fragile material, it cannot stand the repeated expansions and contractions without cracking.

The water absorbed in its pores evaporates or freezes and then expands which causes the tile to break up quickly.

For these reasons tile roofs can never last as long as roofs. Because Certain-teed contracts and expands with temperature changes and does not absorb water, it makes an absolutely weather-proof roof under all sorts of conditions.

Chinese house-owners, too, are using Certain-teed instead of the old-style leaky tile roof.

SWINEHART CASE ENDS; DECISION NOW IS AWAITED

Suit Of Husband Against Wife And P. R. Moore Submitted To Court On Briefs

Suit of Mr. Dudley E. Swinehart against his wife and Mr. R. Moore and against the Moson Hart Company that Mrs. Swinehart and Mr. Moore formed came to a conclusion yesterday in the United States Court for China before Judge Lobingier and is being submitted to the court on briefs. The action involves possion of the Swinehart bank account amounting to Gold $4,863, claimed by both husband and wife, and decision in the case may be held up by circumstances for an indefinite period.

Mr. Swinehart was cross-examined by F. J. Schuhl at the concluding session yesterday and empathetically denied that he had ever told Mrs. Swinehart he had killed a native in South America in self defense, an insinuation brought out during the proceedings. Mr. Swinehart asserted the scars on his hands referred to by Mr. Schuhl, were received while on a turkey hunting expedition in Costa Rica, when he said, he had slipped and fallen while carrying a matte in his hand.

Mrs. Swinehart also took the stand in rebuttal and gave her version of how certain checks drawn by her from the Swinehart's account, had been disposed of. Mr. and Mrs. Swinehart's testimony on the checks, a point concerning the joint money of the couple, differed considerably.

Mrs. Swinehart, indicating several deals Mr. Swinehart engaged in in South America commented on the fact that although his salary was only G.$8400 a year Swinehart saved G.$12,000 during the year he was in South America.

"Yes, you should comment on that, you got most of it," Mr. Faison asserted.

"No, I didn't. I got $4,000 —"

"And another $2,000," Mr. Faison cut in—half at least."

Mr. P. F. Faison, counsel for Mr. Swinehart, then laid the ground to impeach the testimony of Mr. Moore, who gave evidence at yesterday's session. Mr. Faison made allegations of misconduct against Mr. Moore, which were denied by Mr. Moore in a stipulation agreed to by Mr. Faison, corroborated by a stipulation as to the testimony of a woman now in the United States.

To impeach Mr. Moore's testimony Mr. Faison called as witness Miss Annie Taylor Wade, superintendent of the Foreign Women's Home, asserting that her testimony he would impeach both the testimony of Mr. Moore and the unnamed woman.

Judge Lobingier reserved ruling on the admission of Miss Wade's testimony for careful study as it is a new point in the American Court here as to whether the testimony of an absent witness, whose testimony has been admitted by stipulation, can be impeached. The testimony of Miss Wade was accordingly taken in camera and will not become a part of the court record until Judge Lobingier rules on the question.

Mr. Faison then said his case was finished except for evidence by M. de la Prade of the French Court, who because of a provision in the French law could not testify in court. Efforts were being made to take his testimony by desposition, Mr. Faison said. Mr. Schuhl retorted that if M. de la Prade's deposition was taken he would also take some depositions from other French citizens, one of whom was now on his way to Paris, and that would take five or six months.

Mr. Faison will submit his brief within ten days and Mr. Schuhl within 20 days. It is possible that Judge Lobingier will make a decision at that time.

check book on an employe of the British American Tobacco Company, and purchasing several articles of jewelry with the proceeds. He came to Shanghai from Manila, where he achieved some reputation as a boxer, about six months ago.

Chung Soo-na is a Korean who became an American citizen in Hawaii and served in the territorial National Guard forces, where he secured a revolver. Early this Spring he was arrested charged with armed robbery after he had gone to the home of another Korean in the French Concession, accompanied by several other Koreans who were tried in the Japanese Court, and demanded money at the point of a revolver. At his trial he denied that he intended robbing the Korean, asserting that he had been told the man was a wealthy patriot and wanted to contribute to a fund for the independence of Korea.

SWIFT JUSTICE

Harry H. Smith was arrested only last night and within 12 hours was on his way to Bilibid to serve a sentence of three months for vagrancy. He was tried before Judge Lobingier this morning at 11 o'clock during a short recess in the Swinehart case, and with Lloyd S. Lampman sentenced to 3 months and 1 day. Smith pleaded guilty, explaining that he had deserted ships in Manila and Hongkong before coming to Shanghai and had been here three months without working. Only about ten days ago he was arrested charged with the theft of a coat from another man living at Hanbury Institute but the man did not press the charges.

In sentencing Smith and Lampman, who also deserted his ship here and has been "on the beach" for several months, Judge Lobingier remarked that China was no place for a man who had to work for a living with his hands, and said he was sending them to Manila to give them the opportunity of being sent back to the United States.

George F. Donack, who will also serve a 3 months' sentence for vagrancy, was first arrested when an unemployed American seaman who was "on the beach" here, died in a Chinese "hop joint." It was alleged that Donack had sold him the fateful narcotics but Donack denied the charge although admitting that he personally was a "dope fiend" and had been in Shanghai over a year without working.

ONE BIRD IN GAGE

Sailing of the party of seven for Bilibid nearly emptied the American jail, as a solitary prisoner was left in custody of American authorities here. This is S. S. Whitten, arrested the other evening on a charge of drunkenness.

Benny Leonard Far From Fighter That Joe Gans Was

BY ROBERT EDGREN

Joe Gans never drew a $400,000 gate at any of his great championship fights. In that one particular Benny Leonard has it over Joe. And Benny Leonard is a first class fighter and a real champion, although all he could command in his late fight with Tendler was a close "newspaper decision."

But the more Benny fights the more apparent it is that Benny never was and never will be "another Joe Gans." The Joe Gans who is now only a shadowy tradition of the ring, never would have fought an uphill fight half the way against Lew Tendler, and worked his way painfully to the front in the latter end of a 12-round battle. Especially so if Joe Gans had the same reasons for wanting to put Tendler aside.

Leonard is clever and he can hit hard. He is cautious, sometimes, and sometimes he throws caution to the winds. He has a fighting brain. He is a student. When he fights a man the second time he always knows how to beat him. If he fights Tendler again—as of course he will while $400,000 gates are in prospect—he will knock Tendler out if he wants to.

WENT AFTER KNOCKOUTS

Early in his career Benny's ambition was to win all fights with clean knockouts, and usually he made good. Perhaps like a number of other very clever boxers he has seen the commercial advantage attached to a series of hard, but indecisive battles, each with a big purse. Perhaps he has found himself so shy of real opponents that he might be satisfied with merely outpointing Tendler and saving him for a rainy day, the way a squirrel hides away nuts in a hollow tree.

But the chances are Benny found Tendler dangerous, and that he'll use what he learned of Tendler's style to polish him off in a workmanlike manner next time they meet.

But if it had been Joe Gans in the ring with Tendler at Jersey City, that would have been different. Joe Gans fought and beat men with whom Tendler never classed. Joe Gans knocked out Frank Erne, one of the fastest and cleverest lightweights who ever held the title, with a single punch. Gans fought Erne years before and had lost when accidentally blinded by a wide cut over his eye, supposed to have resulted from a butt. But he knew all about Erne. They were matched to fight six rounds later in Philadelphia. Gans was there. Erne went to Philadelphia the day of the bout and took the next train back to New York. I was with him. He said he was tipped off in Philadelphia that he was to be "tricked" out of his title. Later the two met at Fort Erie.

GANS WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

After the fight Gans told me that he knew Erne had a trick of feinting and drawing quickly back just about twelve inches, where he would stop and come in again with a blow. The first time Erne feinted Gans hooked his right with all his power at a spot twelve inches back of Erne's chin. Erne's quick pullback brought his chin to that spot just as Gans's gloved fist arrived. A clean knockout! Gans was world's champion in the shortest championship fight on record.

That was Joe Gans—a student. When Joe began fighting in Baltimore he once went to a theater to see Bob Fitzsimmons box. He was so fascinated by Fitzsimmons's skill that for weeks he followed Bob from town to town, watching every performance and studying Bob's action, prying down under the actual physical movements of the great champion's body and legs and arms to learn the impelling motive in his mind.

At last he believed that he knew what Fitzsimmons was thinking while in action, although, like Kid McCoy, he told me he believed Fitz held much fighting knowledge in reserve, and that Fitz was the master strategist of the ring, deeper and more cunning than any other.

At any rate, having learned all he could of Fitzsimmons's mental processes, Gans went out to fight, and his success was immediate. For several years he was king of them all. There were some black marks against Joe Gans's record, but if some of his fights looked a bit shady—and were shady—he had a reason that the public didn't know.

Late in his career, Gans came to me one day and said: "Mr. Edgren, you've written that certain fights of mine were fakes."

"Yes—I think they were."

"You had it right," said Joe. "But from now on I'm my own man and I'll never fight another crooked fight while I live. I just want you to know how it was. I was always in debt to a man who was handling my business. No matter how many fights I had, I always owed him money, and he had me tied up so that I had to do what he ordered me to. I've broken away. I'm free, and from now on I give you my word my fights will be straight, and I'll win every one as long as I can."

Joe made his word good. Unfortunately he had only a few years more. But he fought like a champion every time.

Gans had a peculiar style. He usually stood with both forearms raised in front of him, and moved very little. He was no fancy dancer like modern boxers, wasting all his force in foolish and unnecessary footwork.

CLEVER SWORDSMAN

Joe reminded me of the story about a Japanese nobleman long ago who had no skill in sword play, and who offended the greatest swordsman in Japan and fought a duel with him. The nobleman knew he would be killed, but an old uncle who was a cunning fencer gave him good advice.

"Take your defensive position," he said, "and no matter what happens you must not move hand or foot, or even blink an eye. Stare straight at your enemy and wait, even if you are being killed. It is your only chance."

The nobleman followed instructions. The master swordsman fenced dexterously, feinted, made tentative cuts and thrusts, but the nobleman never moved an inch or showed the quiver of an eyelash. He was cut on forearms and slashed on face and neck until blood streamed down, but he didn't stir. Suddenly the master swordsman drew back, laid his sword on the ground, and bent his knee.

"I surrender to your mercy," he said, "You are a far greater master than I am. I know that you have determined not to move until you end my life with a single blow—and that when you move I die."

That was Joe Gans's way in the ring—except that Joe was the real master. In his poised, motionless way he waited for an attack, brushed aside blows, and when he saw

SAYS "BUGS" Baer: TEMPLE IS SOFT SPOT

High Punch On Skull Staggers Whenever It Lands On Fighter

Plenty of slug fans wonder how fighters can stand up under thumps that would win cigars on those bell-ringing machines where you slap wooden peg with iron mallet.

Answer is furnished by Jim Savage, retired heavyweight.

Jim says that any fighter who has been in ring for year, or more, is practically insensible to blows unless they actually K. O. him. Then they don't hurt, either.

Paddling purches on jaw toughens fighters up so that they get to look for 'em like old lady watching for morning mail.

Continued skull punishment reduces scrapper to such low mentality that you can make horseshoes on his bean without mussing his hair. No brain can stand up under punishment like old-timers used to hand out, which is reason why modern fighters are all clever.

Not that cleverness is cowardice. It's good judgment.

Any rational citizen will go down from crack on temple. It is more vulnerable than bamm on jaw. Human skulls were not made to absorb anything heavier than hair tonic.

Leonard knocked out Freddy Welsh with thump that landed high on his head. Right on—temple. Fred was one of our cleverest and most intelligent champs. He was great pal of Elbert Hubbard and other authors. When training, Fred wore his leather football headguard and every champ wears them now.

Although beaten to a white blister, Bobby Barrett let fly his right at Lew Tendler and caught him on his temple. Lew staggered around and oldtimers exclaimed "Too high. Too high. Shame it wasn't on jaw."

If it had been on jaw, it would not have hurt Lew as much as it did.

If you want to hurt brains, you ought to use same system as laying carpet tacks.

Hit 'em right on head.

American Club Dinner Ends Baseball Season

BY WESTA

The annual baseball dinner at the American club last night was without doubt the greatest social event of the season. All the members of the gang were there, including players, customers umpires and war correspondents.

President McIntyre, of the baseball club, acted as toastmaster, and as the dinner progressed all the guests wondered how "Mac" had managed to keep his oratorical talents concealed all this time, for as a toastmaster he proved himself a bear, and nothing less.

"Mac" began the evening's fun by calling upon Dinny Doyle, the well known umpire, for a rendition of his famous story about the two gentlemen cows, and after Dinny had told this story in his usual inimitable manner the fun was on. After that it was one long row of laughs, climaxed by Harry Kingman, the well known Newly Wed, who put half the guests under the tables with his account of how Donie Bush, the old Detroit shortstop, had worked a certain pitcher for a base on balls.

The way Harry told this story it was a scream. Previous to the dinner everybody thought Harry was a serious sort of an owl. Nobody dreamed that he could tell a funny story, and when President McIntyre called on him for a story everybody thought: "Well, this will be sad! Imagine that guy Kingman telling a funny story!"

But right there was where our old friend Harry crossed them just as he has crossed the opposition twirlers times without number this summer by dumping a bunt down the third base line when they were expecting him to bust one.

A GREAT WAITER

"Donie Bush," said Harry, "was a great little waiter. Being short and dumpy and awkward at the plate he was hard to pitch to, as is evidenced by the fact that he averaged about a hundred Angie Oakleys a season when he played with Detroit. Well, one day when the New York Yankees were playing in Detroit Donie came to bat with the score tied, determined to get on. So he had no sooner taken his place at the plate than he said to the New York pitcher, who was a hot tempered bush leaguer named 'Cy' somebody: 'say, Cy, I hear you have rheumatism.

"'Rheumatism?' the pitcher repeated. 'What's rheumatism?'

"'Why,' said Donie, 'don't you know what rheumatism is? Rheumatism is weakness of the brain.'

"Whereupon," said Harry, "the pitcher threw one at Donie's head. And that was ball one."

"As the pitcher was taking his stance for the next pitch," Harry said, "Donie called his attention to the fact that Ty Cobb was the next man up. 'I may not get a hit,' said Donie, 'but Ty will. Ty's a four hundred hitter, and the reason he's a four hundred hitter is because the league is full of tall grass pitchers like you.'

"That made the pitcher sore, so he heaved another one at Donie's head. Donie dodged it, and that was ball two."

(By this time, due to the funny twists that Harry was putting on this yarn, half of the diners were slipping out of their chairs).

"So the catcher tossed the ball back to this pitcher," said Harry, "and just as he was getting ready to pitch Donie said: 'Frank Chance (Chance was then manger of the Yankees) told us today that if you would get some sleep instead of spending your nights counting the stories of New York skyscrapers you might win a few games.'

"By that time," Harry continued, "the pitcher was wild, so he threw another one at Donie's head. Donie dodged it, and that was ball three. And at that minute, Harry said, Chance yelled at the pitcher from the dug out: 'Get 'em over, you big bum.'

"So just as this pitcher was winding up again Donie said to him: 'It will be tough going for you a background of interest that will aid in distribution.

The new Chinese variety developed by the University, and called by the assistants the "Million Dollar Cotton" is making a most remarkable showing this year both at Nanking and Shanghai, thus demonstrating in its fourth generation the permanence of its qualities. With the heavy yield that these plants are giving there should be enough seed for more than two hundred mow of this strain by next year. Another strain of improved Chinese cotton has been expanded at Kiangyin that is far superior to the native product, and a third also of unusual merit is being expanded at Nanking.

One experiment in Chinese cotton improvement that may hardly be considered successful, was the importation of good stock seed from Kiangyin and distributing to many farmers near Shanghai. The result has not been sufficiently in favor of the imported product to warrant this method of improvement, and more rapid real progress can doubtless be gained by concentrating attention on the pure strains that are better bred.

The effort to create even better varieties of Chinese cotton continues by searching continually for superior individual plants and multiplying these in progeny rows. This year forty progeny rows from special plants were grown with all blossoms self-pollinated.

The Nantsing Agricultural School at Kiangyin has now concentrated its attention on the improvement of Chinese cotton with our cooperation and have an excellent piece of work under way.

The two seed farms operated by the University in the Kiangyin district promise excellent results and steps have been taken to distribute most efficiently the improved seed produced in this area.

EDUCATION

The training of cotton workers at the University has been carried on systematically with different types of men. During the past year four assistants were University graduates, ten were University students, eight were students paying their own way and working for the experience, eight were special workmen brought from different places to learn methods of cotton, farming or ginning so that they may take charge of places elsewhere. In the summer school a six weeks class of thirty devoted intensive study to problems of cotton culture.

In other schools and communities a great number of demonstration lectures and exhibits have been held by both writer and various assistants. One novel feature of propaganda work is a cotton play which has already been given twice very effectively, once at the National Cotton Convention, and is being scheduled in nearby communities in the near future. In various forms of propaganda work advantage is taken of local festivals or conventions that give special opportunity to have a wide hearing. For example, as this report is being written an assistant has gone to Chuchow where a religious festival has drawn people into the city. He is competing with the idol processions for attention with an American cotton gin in operation, stereopticon pictures and exhibit materials.

IMPLEMENTS

The effort to introduce foreign plows has been continued with great success. Many inquiries have been made and a considerable number of orders have been received for these implements which we supplied at cost. The one animal size which is popular in the Yangtze valley sells at a cost of M. 12.00 whereas the larger types for the northern districts for two or more animals are sold for M. $15.00 to M. $24.00 according to size. These have the special feature of a cast chilled share which is easily replacable, and removes the handicap of other foreign plows because of the inability of the Chinese blacksmith to sharpen or replace the ordinary shares. There have been exhibited to a great many people, not only at the University, but at the National Agricultural Conference at Tsinanfu, in July; at the National Cotton Convention held in Nanking in August, and are a definite part of our extension exhibits throughout the country.

A considerable number of our simple low priced cultivators were manufactured and introduced, these being sold at the price of five dollars. A more adjustable and hence more useful cultivator was designed this summer with the idea of durability and cheapness in the foreground, and several such types have been successfully produced at a cost of seven to nine dollars. These can be expanded or contracted adjusting themselves to any width of row.

Attention was given to a gin for the ginning of Chinese cotton which would be more efficient than the present roller gin of either Chinese or Japanese origin. So far the foreign saw gin is constructed only for American cotton which has a larger seed than Chinese cotton which is not ginned by it successfully. Therefore a new model was made involving certain changes but still using the principle of the saw gin. This new model gins the Chinese cotton perfectly and promises a greater degree of efficiency than the old fashioned type. It can also be constructed in China for less than half the cost of an imported gin. The present high cost of ginning of Chinese cotton is one of the handicaps to the promotion of cotton growing. The introduction of the saw gin especially adapted to Chinese cotton, should materially reduce ginning costs thus giving added impetus to the industry.

The central ginning unit for American cotton in the University was completed this summer by the addition of a press which can make the standard American bale. This press is of the type manufactured by the Continental Gin Company of America, but because of the bulk and weight of the machine with consequential exorbitant shipping charges, the firm consented to sell us the blue prints and iron fittings. We were thus able to construct the press ourselves in Nanking at much less than the cost of importation. Duplicates of this press can be constructed at a cost of not over M. $175.00 and its general introduction in buying centers should result in the marketing of cotton in much better condition and a great saving in bagging and shipping charge. It is of interest that a number companies throughout the country have made requests to manufacture our various implements.

INSECT PESTS

So far, the much dreaded boll weevil which last year caused damage to the extent of G. $610,000,000.00 in the United States, and this year reported even worse, has not entered this country. The propaganda with reference to its danger is continually being promulgated. The most important pest existing in China, the pink boll worm, is of course prevalent as usual, although the fields of the University seem this year to show a greatly diminished number which is doubtless due to the fumigation of the seed before planting. This would indicate that a gerat saving throughout the country can be established by general seed fumigation. During the summer there was more than the usual damage, specially in certain localities from the red spider, due to weather conditions. The aphis, leaf roller, leaf hopper and other insects of minor importance were present as usual although the damage was not of sufficiently serious nature to be cause for alarm.

COTTON CONVENTION

One of the most important events of the year was a convention of workers in cotton improvement from all parts of China held at Nanking, August 15, 16 and 17 of this year at the invitation of the cotton departments of the Southeastern University and the University of Nanking, co-operating. At this time representatives were present from the experiment station of the National Government and of stations in the provinces of Chihli, Shantung, Shensi, Shansi, Hupeh, Anhwei and Chekiang. An extensive educational exhibit was given with special exhibits by Southeastern University and the University of Nanking with other exhibits by participating delegates. The opening meeting was addressed by the Civil Governor Han Kuo-chun, Commissioner of Industries Chang Yao and other speakers of note.

They showed their great interest in the vital problems involved. In the meeting on the second day the convention was addressed by Mr. Charles W. Beswick, Chairman of the Cotton Mill Owners' Association of China, and on the third day plans and regulations were discussed and voted upon with the idea of bringing about the co-operation of the workers and the standardising of their actions for greater efficiency. One of the most important measures passed was the agreement that all experiment stations should forego importing foreign cotton seed except through and by the Executive committee of the organisation. This measure in itself should solve the boll weevil danger problem and make a national quarantine of imported seed possible. Another measure agreed upon was the introduction of the community system of cotton improvement and another the emphasis upon expansion of pure seed areas of one improved variety rather than variety testing. An agreement was made to begin the organising of a crop estimate and reporting system as advocated by advocated by Mr. Beswick in his address. These and other measures will mean much to the progress of Cotton Improvement work if carried out faithfully by the members of the Association.

when Chance cans you. With prohibition in force there will be no brewery wagon for you to drive.' So the pitcher, madder than a boiled owl, threw another one at Donie's head, and that was ball four.

GETTING HIS GOAT

"So Donie took his base, and as Ty Cobb was next up the pitcher walked him on a flash from Chance, and that brought up old Sam Crawford. Sam cracked out a single, and as Donie was just rounding third he waited for Ty, and then the both of them waited for old Sam, and when they were all together Ty put his hand on Donie's shoulder, and Sam put his hand on Ty's shoulder, and the three of them ambled home, lockstep fashion, with their hands to their noses, giving the Yankee pitcher the well known nose and finger salute."

Imagine Harry Kingman telling a story like that!

Of course, the mere setting of it down in type gives no idea of how funny it was as Harry told it. When he had finished half of the guests were under the tables gasping for breath.

So that's the way it went all through the dinner. Freddy Bill made a speech in which he roasted the tar out of a guy named Westa saying, among other things, that he never read Westa's stuff, and then proceeded to tear the said Westa's argument's limb from limb.

Everybody was full of praise for Manager Herby Gallop and Captain Hopkins, both of whom, the gang agreed, had done wonders in making the season the most successful ever experienced in Shanghai.

Jimmy Logan, the well known ump, was the recipient of a beautiful loving cup in recognition of his faithful service during the season, and similar tangible tokens of esteem were presented to the other umps, including Dinny Doyle, the well known base arbiter. Dinny's emotions got the better of him when President McIntyre made the presentation speech. Dinny said in a choking voice:

"Fellers, I done my best. No man can't do no more."

Roars of applause followed this oration of Dinny's.

Altogether, it was a fitting close for a most successful season, and all could see by the spontaneous outburst of handclapping whenever the name of President McIntyre, or Manager Gallop or Captain Hopkins, or Secretary Smith was mentioned that the baseball gang of Shanghai, including players and fans, appreciated to the full the excellent service given to the club by these gentlemen.

his sure opening he drove crashing home the winning blow.

No other fighter has ever perfected that style of fighting. Gans could fight uphill. In two fights Dal Hawkins, who had the greatest lefthand knockout punch I've ever seen, dropped Gans for a nine count. Each time Joe got up, steadied himself, and knocked Hawkins out!

If Gans had been in Leonard's place against Tendler, and Tendler had hammered at his body with the left and dropped a constant string of overhand rights across, Gans would have timed and knocked him out, without question. Gans fought Leonard, Walcott, many great fighters who were bigger and stronger. Langford won a decision over him, but whom couldn't Langford beat when he was young?

A few days ago I met Dick Tully the dramatist, and he told me a story about Gans.

"I was going eastward on the Santa Fe," said Tully, "and away out in the hot Arizona desert the train stopped. I got out. There were half a dozen men with a stretcher. On the stretcher was a man who was either dead or dying. He looked like a mummy—yellow parchment skin drawn tight over his bones. He didn't move. couldn't even see him breathe.

"Must be a rich negro," I said to one of the men, "to have you fellows carrying him."

"'He's not rich—he's poor,' said the man. 'Don't you know him? That's Joe Gans. He wants to die at home, and we're putting him on the train.'

"Next morning I heard that Gans had died during the night.'

CRUEL TERMS IMPOSED

I have little doubt Joe Gans had tuberculosis when his manager let him go. He wanted to make a stake to leave his family. He knocked out a few fighters before he met Battling Nelson, claimant of the lightweight title Gans held. Gans had a cruel deal in that match. Nolan and Nelson haggled over weight and money, forced the champion to take a small end of the big purse, and on the last day, finding Gans had made 133 pound stripped, as agreed, insisted he must weigh in at 133 ringside in full fighting togs.

That last drying out must have nearly finished Gans, but the courage of the black champion never showed more strongly than in the terrific fight that followed.

For over forty rounds, Battling Nelson, tough, tireless, punch-proof, hurled himself against Gans's hardest blows and hammered at Joe's body until between rounds Joe laid across the ropes to vomit. Yet Gans pounded Nelson back until Nelson, blinded and infuriated beyond control, growing weak too fouled and lost.

Gans stopped Jimmy Britt, a great lightweight, in many ways better than Nelson. In a year or so he fought Nelson again. By this time tuberculosis had laid a heavy hand on him. Yet for eighteen rounds he stood toe to toe with Nelson and drove him back with perfectly driven blows that with Gans's old stamina behind them would have stopped anything human. Nelson knocked him out, and knocked him out again a month later.

Gans fought once more—a pitiful indecision bout with Spike Robson in New York—and all of us who remembered the invincible Old Master thought he faked again. But he didn't fake. He was dying, and only the desire to take care of his family as long as he could kept him on his feet.

Perhaps if Benny Leonard had the great lightweights of Gans' time to fight he might be "another Joe Gans."

But, after seeing them all, I'll say there never has been another Joe Gans passed along.

Firefighting Is Topic At Meeting Of Rotarians

Fire-fighting was the topic of the tiffin hour yesterday at the weekly meeting of The Rotarians and in the course of the speaking Fire Chief M. W. Pett of the Settlement Department, now home on leave, came in for high priase, particularly from the man who is best qualified to know what Chief Pett has achieved here. This is Acting Chieif Gordon Dyson, who held the interest of the gathering through a narrative he gave of fire fighting form early times up to the present.

Speakers who joined in lauding Chief Pett were Mr. Evans, former member of the Volunteer Brigade, and Mr. H. A. Wiley of the Executive Committee of the Fire Insurance Association.

Speakers deplored the inadequate water supply and asserted that the administration, equipment and personnel of the fire department were factors that could merit only the highest praise.

Captain Dyson sketched an interesting history of fire fighting throughout the world. He said little about battling fires here and felt that he could not comment on the protests registered against the water supply because of his official position.

H. Upton, the officer in charge of Central Fire Station and the acting chief's right-hand man, also came in for praise from both Captain Dyson and Mr. Evans. The latter was an officer in Deluge Company and worked under Upton three years.

The Rotarians will make an inspection of the Fire Department this evening at 5:45 when an exhibition drill will be held at the Central Station. The crews will attempt to break their time record for getting out of the station. After, the Rotarians will inspect the Hongkew Station, the most up-to-date in Asia and will also visit the workshops, where equipment for the local department is made.

In his praise of Chief Pett, Captain Dyson asserted "Shanghai today has the most modern department in Asia and when the new fire alarm system is installed and the new fire boat put in commission, it will rank with the department of any city anywhere in the world." He said the local firemen arrived at a blaze much more quickly than the machines in England because light apparatus is used here. There are but 15 foreigners and 300 chinese in the brigade at present and seven men are coming from England shortly to join the department.

In sketching the history of fire fighting, Captain Dyson traced from the first efforts made by the Romans and in the London Guilds. He told of the parish organisations in England and said that organised fire-fighting was unknown prior to the Great Fire of London in 1666. The first hose, made of leater, came from Holland, the first steam fire engine from England and the first internal combustion engine from the United States, he said.

Gen. Li Lieh-chun Here From Hankow

General Li Lieh-chun, commander of the Southern Army which participated in the recent punitive expedition arrived in Shanghai by a Japanese boat from Hankow yesterday. A large number of Kuomingtang leaders were at the Nisshin Kisen Kaisha wharf to greet the general, who was escorted to a local hotel by Mr. Hsu Yuan-hao, former Taoyin of Shanghai and personal representative here of the general during the expedition.

General Li Appears to be somewhat tired but talks freely in good spirit. He does not wish to give any statement at present but contends that he is still in the fight for constitutionalism. He will call on Dr. Sun Yat-sen today.

SILAS APPEALS

Formal notice was given in the U. S. Court for China yesterday that an appeal is being taken in the case of Mr. Arthur D. Silas versus Arkell and Douglas Inc. The notice was filed by attorney H. D. Rodger, representing Arthur D. Silas. In this case Mr. A. D. Silas is suing to recover the sum of Tls. 375, which he alleges is due as ommission on Briscoe cars sold by him which beronged to Arkell and Douglas.

Shantung Envoys Abandon Sessions

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Sept. 11.—The Sino-Japanese Joint Commission for Shantung has ceased its labors in Peking for the present. The Japanese Commissioners with the exception of His Excellency, M. Obata, are now in Tsingtao where they will be joined by the Chinese members of the Commission. These Commissioners were preceded by the sub-commissions who are already at work in Tsingtao where they have the actual properties at hand to work out their figures from. It is not expected that the Commission will resume its Peking sessions for some little time.

M. P.'s DEMONSTRATE

Peking, Sept. 14.—A group of members of the 1919 Parliament from Shanghai today demonstrated outside the House of Representatives with the object of securing an interview with Mr. Wu Ching-lien and demanding the restoration of their seats.

The Constitution-drafting Committee was then sitting and the doors were closed to avoid a disturbance.

Marguerite turns from Laurier

For all that she knew her husband was deeply devoted, for all his distinction in Paris, Marguerite had never loved him. But she had kept resolutely her share of the bargain in matrimony her parents had arranged—until one afternoon she visited the home of Marcelo Desnoyers, and then—but that is part of the story of

FARES CHEAP, BUT BAGGAGE IS HIGH ACROSS SIBERIA

Rates For Trunks Almost As Much As For Owner

Tientsin, Sept. 6.—From Manchuria to Moscow the cost of a first class ticket, sleeper included is 262 gold rubles or about U. S. $131. The second class fare is 223 gold rubles or about U. S. $111.50, says a correspondent of the North China Star writing from Harbin.

After passing Verkne Udinsk, the second class degenerates into a general free-for-all, and passengers are advised not to attempt to travel other than first class, especially after leaving Chita.

The fare from Harbin to Manchuria is 55 gold rubles first class and 42 second class, and the difference in the accommodation is not worth the extra cost. The 13 rubles saved by travelling second class to Manchuria is usable in staying over night at Manchuria. From Manchuria station to Chita there can be 19 rubles saved by travelling second class, also a saving that can be made without sacrificing comfort. The first class fare to Chita from Manchuria is 49 rubles, while the second class fare is 30 rubles. By going second class, Manchuria to Chita and then first class Chita to Moscow, the cost of a ticket will be 243 gold rubles, or $121.50.

No free baggage is allowed. For every pood of baggage carried, there is charged 14.55 gold rubles or about U. S. $7.30. A pood is 36 American pounds, so it can be seen that while the fare is cheap, baggage is charged for at very high rates.

The baggage regulations of the Chinese Eastern are more liberal, as hand baggage is not charged for, but from Manchuria station on, the Russian roads collect heavily. The average traveller will have not less than 3 poods of baggage.

From Harbin to Moscow (second class Harbin to Chita, thence first class) the outlay for ticket, sleeper and baggage will be 327.65 gold rubles or about $163.80 in United States money.

There is a restaurant car from Harbin to Manchuria, and another from Manchuria to Moscow. The meals are reasonable in price but travellers are advised to carry some food with them, especially after leaving Chita.

The sleeping cars are also prepared to furnish bedding, but carrying not less than three blankets is good insurance. Especially is this recommended in the winter months.

The through train leaves Manchuria station each Wednesday. If you listen to the railroad men, you may be led into believing that it is in time if you leave Harbin on Tuesday. Travellers say however, that there is more time required at Manchuria for the visaing of passports than there exists between the arrival of the Chinese Eastern train and the departure of the road. It is therefore better to leave Harbin on Monday.

Passports should be obtained at Peking from the representative of the Soviet Government in that city. More than 24 hours should be allowed in Harbin for visas into the Far Eastern Republic. Gold rubles should be purchased in Harbin or at Manchuria station.

At Verkne Udinsk it is necessary to convert gold into Soviet paper money in order to buy the ticket on to Moscow. Through tickets are not sold from Manchuria station or Chita.

From Chita the trip to Moscow can be made in about 12 days. The time of the schedule is 10 days. By travelling light, and exercising patience, the trip can be made from Manchuria station to Moscow in comparative comfort.

Extraordinary care in the preparation of documents should be taken, and the carrying of letters of introduction and identification, especially in Russian, is recommended.

Peking Teachers Get Half Of April Pay, But May Not Work

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Sept. 11.—The Government as a sop to bring the teachers of the eight higher schools into line so that the schools may open on time, is granting them a half month's salary today. This covers the first half of April, all since then still being in arrear. Whether this will have its effect and the teachers will respond is debatable.

At three o'clock yesterday afternoon a joint meeting of the representatives of the eight Government schools was held in the Peking School of Fine Arts at which some forty Chinese and foreign newspaper men were the guests. Cheng Shih-husn was the Chairman and commented on the action of Kao En-hung, Minister of Communications, in trying to overthrow the Cabinet decision thereby causing the salaries of the teachers to fall five months in arrears.

He pointed out that the effect of this was the bankruptcy of education in China.

Since the Central Government has disregarded education, the militarists have likewise taken their cue and done the same. The result is that education throughout the country is likely to lapse, as the students are being driven into the mission schools and universities. This [illegible] education of Chinese entirely [illegible] the hands of foreigners.

All of this, the speaker blamed on Kao Eng-hung who tried to cancel the decision of the Cabinet, so that the monthly expenses of the Ministry of Education could be met by the Ministry of Finance instead of by the Ministry of Communications.

Students Trying To Force Payment Of Teachers At Peking

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Sept. 11.—The students of the Peking University worried by the announcement that their school would not open, held a meeting yesterday in the University. They recommended that measures be taken to prevail upon the heads of the eight Government Universities to remain at their posts; that educational funds should be made independent and that the necessary measure to effect this should be immediately taken.

The Government should be urged to pay the back salaries they resolved and Parliament should be appealed to for the impeachment of Kao En-hung, with a plea to President Li to discharge him from his post. All educational interests are asked to combine to make a joint appeal to the Parliament and President. They also voted that material help should be solicited from people of all classes.

A permanent body of fifteen was elected to handle the matter of urging the opening of the university and to attend to other activities for the furtherance of educational affairs. This body will join with similar bodies of students from the other seven schools with the idea of attaining their present object and also the securing of a permanent fund for educational purposes.

Re-Insurance Deal Involves 50 Millions

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Sept. 8.— A vast re-insurance transaction just announced has established a world record and at the same time must enormously affect the prestige of British life insurance companies.

It is given out at the headquarters of the Company that the Sun Life Insurance Company of Canada has taken over policies of the Equitable Life Insurance Company and the New York Life Assurance Company in most parts of the world outside of the United States, Canada and Europe. The amount involved is said to be some $50,000,000.

The Sun Life Insurance Combally of Canada has been established in Japan for a number of years and Mr. B. Higginbotham the Manager for Japan of the Sun Life Insurance Company, today confirmed the Montreal announcement. He said that other important deals were in progress, but not yet ready for publication.

Poland Buying New Equipment For Army

(China Press Service)

Warsaw, Sept. 12.—The Polish republic has begun the unification of its armament which, it has been found, will involve the scrapping of the bulk of the material accumulated from various sources during the past four years.

The renewed equipment will be one more step in the transformation of the Polish emergency force to a methodically organised national body.

Purchases are being made principally in France to replace that part of the old material that cannot be used for the equipment of the new army which, on a peace basis, was fixed at 250,000 men in the last budget.

French officers are helping in the reorganisation of the army, but in much smaller numbers than served during the campaign against the Bolsheviki. There were then 1,986 French officers in the field; there are now 63, all told, attached to the army as instructors in the Polish military school.

President To Sign Bonus Bill, Report

(China Press Service)

Waco, Texas, Sept. 13.—President Harding will not veto the soldiers' bonus act for the compensation of veterans of the late war, according to National Committeeman Storting speaking before the Texas Convention of the American Legion, here today.

He was wildly applauded by the assembled veterans.

Mr. Storting said he had been advised that the Washington board of the legion had received this information direct from President Harding's private secretary.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

September 14, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each down 1s. 3d. in London yesterday. The New York price declined to 69½ cents and the London-New York cross rate to 442⅝. Our official Sterling rate here today was unchanged from yesterday, the Gold Dollars rate was dropped to 76½, the Yen rate raised to 63¼, the Franc rate to 1010 and the other rates changed accordingly.

The market opened uncertain, being fairly steady for Sterling but easy for Gold Dollars and Yen. At the opening there were sellers of Sterling at 3s. 5½d. for September-October delivery and 3s. 5⅝d. for forward. There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 76½ for September-October and 76¾ for forward and sellers of Yen at 63¼ for September-October and 63⅛ for forward. A fair amount of business was done at these rates but as bank were not anxious sellers and speculators were inclined to buy, the market eased off and at the Tiffin interval there were good buyers at these rates with sellers of Sterling about ⅛d. lower and Gold Dollars about ⅛ point lower. Just before the close the market steadied up slightly, and closed at about the level at which it opened, about the only currency banks were not anxious to buy today was Francs of which there were sellers of T.T. at 1020, buyers didding 1030. Banks were quoting for Sterling bills 3s. 6¼d. for Gold Dollar bills 78¼ and for Franc bills 1055. India bought silver in London yesterday and the market is reported as steady. The New York market is easy with sellers at the official rate.

Rubber Planters Ask Lower Duties

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 13.—Sir James Stevenson, personal Commercial Adviser to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, presided over a meeting of the Rubber Committee at the Colonial Office yesterday to consider the resolution of the Rubbergrower's' Association which favors a restriction scheme providthat the voluntary assistance of the interests operating in the Dutch East Indies and elsewhere can adequately be obtained.

The resolution urges that, if the export duty scheme be adopted, the maximum duty on the lowest percentage of standard production should be fixed at the lowest possible rate in order to avoid further heavy taxation on producers. It is proposed that the producers be consulted in the settlement of the administration of the scheme.

The Rubber Shareholders' Association has approved the Rubbergrowers' Association's recommendations and urges prompt action.

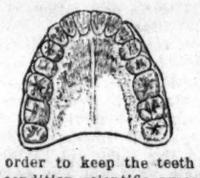
Sir James Stevenson, interviewed after the meeting, declined to say anything until he had consulted Mr. Winston Churchill, the Colonial Secretary, who is keenly interested in the solution of the problem. Sir James Stevenson pointed out that the Colonial Office had to consider the effect of restriction upon the development of rubber-producing colonies as well as immediate prospective relief to rubber interests.

Promoter Of Lyons Fair Goes To Russia

(Reuter's Service)

Lyons, Sept. 13.—Mayor Herriot, the wellknown business organiser and founder of the Lyons fair, has departed for Russia. When it was announced a month ago that M. Herriot was going to Russia at the invitation of the Soviet leaders, the French Government denied that he was entrusted with a Government mission.

KINGMAN & BROS.
How to Preserve the Teeth



In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis, esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr KINGMAN to the subscribers consist in:—

(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly.
(2) Filling with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

Compensation Bill In Indian Assembly

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, Sept. 13.—A political innovation in India was announced in the Legislative Assembly today when Mr. C. A. Innes, an official member, introducing a Workmen's Compensation Bill, stated that the measure had been cordially approved by the Provincial Governments, the Chambers of Commerce and the Employes Associations but the Burma Government opposed it. The Bombay Government agreed to the measure in principle but differed with respect to methods. The bill was of a very simple character and would be circulated for further criticism. There was no intention of rushing it through the Assembly.

The Bill was referred to a joint select committee of both Houses.

Disarmers Asked To Carry On By League

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 13.—A protracted Anglo-French debate on the disarmament proposals of the Third Commission of the League today ended in the adoption of a resolution, asking the Disarmament Commission to continue its investigations. It also requested the Council of the League in the meantime to submit the Commission's scheme to the Powers with a view to finding out under what conditions they would be ready to sign the suggested mutual guarantee pact on which the disarmament proposals depend.

England Today

(The following notes are from the notebook of Herbert Bayard Swope, Executive Editor of The New York World, who has just returned from Europe. His notes on conditions in France were published yesterday. Besides winning the Pulitzer Prize for meritorious newspaper work in 1917, Mr. Swope was associate chairman of the War Industries Board and Chairman of the American Committee on Publicity at the Peace Conference.)

MUCH has been written of the many men who are possible successors of Lloyd George. Among those mentioned are Sir Robert Horne, Winston Churchill, Lord Birkenhead, Robert Cecil, Herbert Asquith, Lord Curzon Earl Balfour, Austen Chamberlain, Bonar Law and, in the event of a labor victory, J. R. Clynes. I have tried to make the list comprehensive. though there are only a few to whom serious consideration is being given.

The fact that there is no outstanding figure as a possible successor weakens the opposition to the present leader.

Birkenhead has popularity and ability, but he has certain personal defects that in all probability will bar him from this final honor.

There is another impediment operating against Birkenhead—and it is weighty—he is named Smith, and, with very few exceptions, no man named Smith has ever been important in British political life.

Little has been said about the chances of one individual who, in my opinion, is more likely to be Prime Minister than any of the others. I mean Lord Derby He is a Conservative, but his political life has been marked by such fairness that it will not be difficult for him to draw support from Liberal ranks. He is thoroughly British, and he stands for strong reapprochement with France, where he was, until recently, Ambassador. He played a great part in the war, yet he is moderate in his attitude toward German penalisation. He is interested in mines and in industry, and yet goes well with the labor cohorts. He is a celebrated sportsman. He possesses a pleasing personality—he is a bluff, hearty type. He is the kind that Englishmen like to think is typical of themselves.

Perhaps the best testimonial to the stability of British institutions is shown by the fact that its Government is the only one still in existence that fought and won—or lost—a war. In all the other countries there have been changes — America, Germany, France, Austria, Hungary, Russia, Greece, Bulgaria and the others.

For the most part England is not ruled by the English. The Scotch, Welsh and Irish—that is, the North Irish—are running the Government. Soon, it is expected by observers, the South Irish and the South Africans will be found the rulers.

Lloyd George is Welsh, Bonar Law, Sir Hamar Greenwood and Lord Beaverbrook are Canadians. Balfour and McPherson are Scotch. Churchill is half American and Carson is Irish.

When the British Commonwealth of Nations becomes a fact instead of a theory, Jan Smuts of South Africa may become Premier of the empire.

Lloyd George is aware that his popularity is not as great as it was, and with his waning favor there has come a diminution in his strength, but he is still so firmly intrenched that it will be he who will force the issue of a general election, and he will go to the people on his own plan of battle—and win—in all probability. Few men in the history of politics or of any other profession have ever possessed the fascinating personality and radiating magnetism that characterise Lloyd George. He doesn't fool himself and rarely tries to fool his people. He shifts his opinion with theirs, but usually just far enough ahead of them to justify his being called a leader.

When William Randolph Hearst, bitter critic of the British Government, went to England a few months ago, the English Government made much of him. When he went to France no attention was accorded him. The British realised his potentialities; the French ignored them. The political acumen of the two nations is reflected in this incident.

Lloyd George is deeply concerned about Germany. He is convinced that a revolution impends there. Those in his confidence say that he fears the French attitude is helping this revolutionary development.

English opinion of America is gathered from returned lecturers, a horde of whom she has been exporting annually, ranging in importance from Margot Asquith up or down as the case may be. Their views are limited and biased. The English papers print far less news about America than American papers print about England, and yet uninformed and superficial critics, such as Mrs. Asquith, talk of the American press as if no foreign news was to be found in its columns.

Probably one in every five well-to-do Americans in the eastern part of America has been abroad. Few English, and fewer Europeans, from the same stratum have been to America.

Ambassador Harvey's position in London is curious. He has developed no popularity, but there is a certain respect accorded his ability. His list of presentations at the royal drawing rooms and the invitations he extended to the royal garden parties are still the subject of animated discussion. They ran the gamut from former bartenders to expatriates who are seeking the social preferment that America denied them.

All England resents the manner in which she thinks America is shirking her international responsibilities. America, as England sees her, was quick on the trigger in her unwelcome participation in Irish affairs but most laggard in shouldering responsibility in those situations she so largely helped to create.

Of all places abroad London is highest in its cost of living. The hotel prices there are little short of outrageous. The tariff for hotel rooms is higher than in New York, although hotel keepers have the profit that liquor pays them—probably reaching 300 percent—which New York caravansaries no longer enjoy.

The divergence of English opinion from the French viewpoint has given new strength to the old insistence of the Briton that he is not a European. They like to think of themselves as a race and a region apart from the rest of the world—sui generis.

The British, too, are fed up with war and make no effort to conceal the disfavor with which they look upon all sabre rattlers.

Topics In Brief

Our idea of dangerous occupations is the attempt of some newspapers to select the twelve greatest women in America.—Asheville Times.

Having failed to obtained from France a reduction in reparations, or a loan from the international bankers, Germany announces that it will pay the indemnity installment anyway, as it has the money. This ought to help a great many persons to understand Germany better.—Rochester Herald.

"It is a great thing to come from a state of poverty," says an industrial magnate. It is if you come far enough from it.—Waterbury Democrat.

One mystery in ancient history has been cleared up for us. The reason things went wrong at Babel was because Lloyd George wasn't there.—Capper's Weekly.

The Springfield Republican asserts that in Turkey the dominance of man over woman is still preached. It is preached in the American home, but the audience goes on dominating.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The German President

(Contributed)

IT is an undertaking next to impossible to penetrate the screen of semi-secrecy as a rule surrounding the hallowed persons of crowned heads, jealously guarded in their private lives by a coterie of preceptors, courtiers and other individuals, more or less impelled by personal motives.

Quite different however lies the case with the uncrowned heads of states. Their lives lie bare and open until the confidence of their co-citizens elevates them to the high place.

In the case of the first President of the German Commonwealth, the presidency was not coveted but simply and almost unanimously given to him as a mark of esteem and confidence in the high qualifications and political and personal integrity of the man.

The writer of these lines had the pleasure of meeting and conversing daily during a period of about three weeks with a German citizen, who had the good fortune in his younger days to become the personal friend of Mr. Ebert, that acquaintance dating back to their journeymen-days, for until about thirty years back, German journeymen had to go abroad all over Europe in order to improve in their respective trades. Thus it came to pass that my Hamburg acquaintance, the cooper from Upper Hesse fell in with the travelling saddler-journeyman from Baden and his simple tale runs about as follows:

I have known Mr. Ebert many years. We travelled together as journeymen and we have together visited many towns famous for some old landmarks in our respective trades—Heidelberg and the old cities of the Palatinate. If we met others in the same callings it would have been queer if Mr. Ebert had not sized them up quickly as regards their moral and mental qualities. He himself formed early his own political creed of a decidedly democratic and exceedingly moderate persuasion, which he imparted to me and of which I was and am now firmly convinced. Mr. Ebert was a staunch believer in the peaceful revolution towards political freedom of mankind on the foundations of law and order, a creed from which he has not diverged an iota to this present day. Always calm even when speaking about the deplorable condition of the lower strata of men and of those, whom he held responsible for such condition, he was not at all unwilling to with a sensible passage at words with those who held different political views, whom he very often turned to his side.

Mr. Ebert always was, as said above, for a peaceful revolution. In Imperial days that would have been impossible, but at the critical moment of the war, with Germany already starving, was slowly but surely being pressed back towards her own frontiers; it was politically advisable to essay the overthrow of the dynasty and the imperial government without bloodshed and this view and the initiative thereof was in great measure due to Mr. Ebert. Subsequent events have proven that he was right. There was some shedding of blood but that was not directly ascribable to the peaceful revolution but to the disorderly elements flooding back into Germany from the fronts and the outer world. These ultra-radicals beyond the recognised shades of citizenship had to be suppressed, and they were suppressed, not by a preparatory shilly-shallying, but by the unexpected show of power on the part of the Provisional Government. These measures were also mostly due to Mr. Ebert, who thus convinced the ultra-radicals quickly, that their idea of freedom could not live out a single day if it meant plunder. His strong show of energy, his well known integrity and veracity saved the situation. The people believed in him.

The German machine of state has had very little means for running. But one assurance can safely be made. If certain foes of Germany have tried to embroil her again after the conclusion of peace, Mr. Ebert's dignified silence has often carried the day. How he must have suffered, seeing his beloved country condemned to impotency. But his wisdom stood him in good stead; always calm, dignified and courageous, he never allowed himself to slip away from his guarded standing.

All honor then to the man who suddenly elevated to the highest position his countrymen can bestow, showed wisdom and dignity in emergencies, where others, trained from early youth, but misguided by a clique, would have failed, on account of their tendency to regard the State and People as their private property.

THE CHURCH UNIVERSAL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: I wish to refer to "Professor's" reply to my letter on the above subject, in which he points out the differences between Mahomedanism, Buddhism, and Christianity. Of course, it is easy to pick differences in religions, and the average layman no doubt accepts such differences as being fundamental. To show, however, that all religions are really built on the same plan is not so easy, and, in a correspondence column of a busy newspaper, altogether out of the question. All I can do, therefore, is to give your readers a few brief hints showing that such similarities exist, and the reader can decide for himself whether or not these few similarities are worth all the differences in the world. Here are some Hindu expressions as to their conception of God:

"I am the Self, seated in the heart of all beings."

"For Him whose name is Infinite Glory there is no likeness." (not different fundamentally from the Jewish and Christian "I am the Lord and there is none else. There is no God beside me.")

"Manifest, near, dwelling verily in the heart, is the great goal; on Him is founded all that moves, breathes, and closes the eyes." (not different fundamentally from Christ's words "The kingdom of heaven is within you" and the phrase in Acts "He is not far from any of us, for in Him we live and move and have our being."

The above quotations are from the Upanishads, which are of unknown antiquity.

Here are a few other ideas about God:

"My first name is Ahmi—I am." (Zoroastrian). This is very similar to the phrase in Exodus: "I am that I am," the statement of pure existence, a conception found alike in all religions.

"Though, first great Thinker, whose splendour pervades all light, who through His intellect is the Creator of all, who supports righteousness and the good mind. Though Spirit Mazda, Though Who art ever the same." "His origin none can know, except himself, who can comprehend Him?" (Zoroastrian).

"God, there is no God but He the ever-living, the ever-subsisting . . . To Him belongeth whatsoever is in Heaven and on earth. . . . His throne is extended over the Heavens and the earth, and the care of them burdeneth Him not, for He is the High, the Mighty" (The Koran).

"The Great Tao has no bodily form, but it produced and nourises heaven and earth. The Great Tao has no passions, but It causes the sun and moon to revolve as they do. The Great Tao has no name, but It effects the growth and maintenance of all things." (Chinese: "Classic of Purity").

As to Man and Ethics, here are a few lessons:

"Those who by love and wisdom know Him as dwelling in the heart, they become immortal." (Hindu).

"God saith: O man, only follow thou my laws and thou shalt become Mke unto Me, and then thou shalt say 'Be', and behold it is." (Mahommedan).

"Purity is the best good. Happines, happiness is to him namely, to the best pure in purity." (Zoroastrian: Khorda Avesta) Again, "Pure thoughts, pure words, pure deeds," is the axiom of the Zoroastrian religion.

"Let a man overcome anger by love; let him overcome evil by good; let him overcome the greedy by liberality, the liar by truth." (Buddhist teaching).

The above, as I said, are only hints, as no full justice can be given here to the wonderful subject of Comparitive Religion. Let me however, quote from Dr. A. Besant's "The Ancient Wisdom":

"The main spiritual verities of religion may be summarised thus:

1.One eternal infinite incognisable real Existence.

ii. From THAT the manifested God, unfolding from unity to duality, from duality to trinity.

iii. From the manifested Trinity many spiritual Intelligences, guiding the kosmic order.

iv. Man a reflection of the manifested God and therefore a trinity fundamentally, his inner and real Self being eternal, one with with the Self of the universe.

v. His evolution by repeated incarnations, into which he is drawn by desire, and from which he is set free by knowledge and sacrifice becoming divine in potency as he had ever been divine in latency."

I am, etc.

SOPHIA.

GERMANS AND THE CHINESE CUSTOMS SERVICE

EJitor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: In your issue of August 19 last you printed a news item giving the number of foreign employes in the Chinese Maritime Customs as 1409, among them 228 Germans. It is true that this number of Germans was employed in the Chinese Maritime Customs before the war but at present there is not one German employed in this service. The above erroneous statement not having been withdrawn by you and having been copied by other newspapers you will perhaps be glad to learn and publish the facts of the case.

On China's declaration of war against Germany the Chinese Cabinet instructed the Inspector General of Customs to relieve all employes of German nationality of their posts, irrespective of their length of service and their position. The Inspector General carried this order out paying individuals what was due to them in cash according to service rules then in force. The employes discharged confidently expected re-employment on the termination of the war on the lines followed by the Service on the occasion of former wars fought on Chinese soil. During these wars the nationals of the countries with which China was at war were at most suspended from active service and retained pay and seniority during the duration of the state of war.

After the re-establishment of peaceful relations between China and Germany, many of the discharged Germans applied for reinstatement to the Inspector General of Customs but were invariably informed that there were no vacancies. Efforts at re-employment made through the Wai Chiao Pu also had no success. The Inspector General of Customs pleaded that the vacancies created by the discharge of the German employes having been filled at the time, there were no vacancies except occasionally in the most junior grades. This is all the more difficult to understand as it is well known that the Customs Service is short staffed in a great number of ports and is deficient in experienced men.

It should be noted that the deviation from the procedure followed on the occasion of former wars has not been caused by any fault of the individuals concerned who actually served in the Customs with credit and tact and without any friction during the first three years of the war together with their colleagues belonging to the various countries at war with Germany.

This refusal of re-employment is unfair and cruel and works great hardship on these discharged employes. The Chinese Maritime Customs Service was their life career which they entered in their youth and in which many of them had served creditably for 10, 20, 30 and more years. Those engaged in Europe had at the time of joining by a formal letter of appointment been placed on the same permanent footing as Government employes in their countries. Absorption in the very specialised Customs work, in the exceptional conditions in China and in the study of the Chinese language has made them less fit for other work and many of the older ones have consequently failed in finding other employment. Their scanty savings have been used up in the five years elapsed since their discharge and starvation stares them in the face. Some of them have been driven by despair to commit suicide and others are on the verge of committing it.

It seems incumbent on the Chinese Government and on the Customs Service to provide for these people in consideration of their long and faithful service either by re-employing or by pensioning them and not to allow old and faithful servants to perish in abject misery as beggars and charges on public charity. Enclosing my card, I remain, Dear Sir, Yours faithfully,

The World Of Letters As Others See It

BROVE HIM TO LITERATURE

The trouble with me is that I once had a perfectly good little factory over in Ohio, and there was a nice ash heap in a vacant lot beside it, and it was on a nice stream, and I dumped stuff out of my factory and killed the fish in it and spoiled it just splendid for a while. What I think now is that I would have been all right and a good man, too, but on summer afternoons I got to moping about the Ohio hills alone, instead of going over to the Elks Club and playing pool, where I might have got in with some of the boys and picked up some good points. There were a lot of good bangup Ohio pushers over in that Ohio town I had my factory in and I neglected them. So of course I went broke and I'll admit I've been rather a sorehead ever since. But when I come down to admit the honest truth I'll have to say it wasn't Ohio's fault at all. —From 'Ohio: I'll Say We've Done We'll.' By Sherwood Anderson in the Nation.

OSCAR WILDE IN DOWNFALL

Cultivated London, that before the action against Lord Queensberry had mocked his pose and affected style and refused to acknowledge his wit, was now full of his advocates, though I did not meet a single man who considered him innocent. One old enemy of his overtook me in the street and began to praise his audacity, his self-possession. "He has made," he said, "of infamy a new Thermopylae." I had written in reply to Lionel Johnson's letter that I regretted Wilde's downfall but not that of his imitators, but Johnson had changed with the rest. "Why should I not regret the fall of Wilde's imitators"—I had but tried to share what I thought his opinion —"They were worthless, but should have been left to criticism." Wilde himself was a martyr in his eyes, and when I said that tragedy might give his art a greater depth he would not even grant a martyr's enemies that poor merit, and thought Wilde would produce, when it was all over, some comedy exactly like the others, writing with an art where events could leave no trace. Everywhere one met writers and artists who praised his wit and eloquence in the witness box or repeated some private saying.—From 'More Memories.' By W. B. Yeats in the Dial.

SHELLEY AT OXFORD

Shelley achieved quite a notoriety while at Oxford for his regularity in breaking rules, his slovenly dress and his extraordinary gestures. He charged the knob of a door with electricity for the confusion of any who tried to open it, and he demonstrated his knowledge of chemistry by spilling corrosive acid on the carpet of a tutor who reprimanded him.' He had already gained distinction as a writer when the pamphlet was published, so much so that when his father brought him to Oxford he introduced him to one of the partners in the firm of Munday and Slatter with the words: "My boy here has a literary turn; he is already an author; do pray indulge him in his printing freaks."—From the Christian Science Monitor.

SPENDING TIME PROFITABLY

There still lingers among us the belief that poetry is the senior branch of the service. If we have an hour to spend we feel that we lay it out to better advantage with Macaulay. And so, perhaps, we come to novels neither knowing the right way to read them nor very much caring to acquire it. We ask one thing and they give us another. They are so long, so dull, so badly written; and after all, one has life enough on one's hands already without living it all over again between dinner and bedtime in prose. Such are the stock complaints, and they lose nothing of their acrimony if with the same breath we have to admit that we owe more to Tolstoy, Dostoevsky and Hardy than we can measure, that if we wish to recall our happier hours they would be those Conrad has given us and Henry James; and that to have seen a young man bolting Meredith whole recalls the pleasure of so many first readings that we are even ready to venture a second.—From 'On Rereading Novels.' In the London Times.

A DICKENS MUSEUM

Dickensians are now thinking about a national Dickens museum; some suitable shrine for Dickens pilgrims to resort to. Perhaps there is need for this, owing to the tendency of old Dickensian landmarks in and around London to disappear. The Dickens fellowship proposes 48 Doughty street for the purpose. At that abode most of "Pickwick Papers," "Olivers Twist" and "Nicholas Nickleby" were written. Incidentally, the goldfinch episode happened there. According to John Forster, the master bought the bird in a squalid court in Spitalfields because it played tricks and drew water for itself. At No. 48 it firmly refused to perform. The dealer was notified. He came around and, says Dickens, "cocked up his evil eye at the goldfinch. Instantly a raging thirst beset that bird, and when it was appeased he still drew several unnecessary buckets of water, leaping about his perch and sharpening his bill with irrepressible satisfaction." A trivial incident, but Dickensian.—From the Christian Science Monitor.

ELIZABETH AND HER GARDEN

It used to be thought that the authoress of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden" must be an American woman, because she wrote so wittily. Everybody was sure she could not be a German woman and write so wittily. We all know, or should know by now, that "Elizabeth" is of good British stock, that she married first a German noble, Count von Arnim, and that she is now Countess Russell. At present she is in Switzerland, where she is finishing a story to ge called "The Enchanted April." Mostly it is laid in the Italy of today, which Lady Russell knows well, and the naive humor which we discovered in the "German Garden" leaps through it, both in incident and in characterisation.—From the London Graphic.

BYRON'S "DON JUAN"

There are, in fact, no characters in "Don Juan" but one, and that one is the noble author, who acts as chorus and speaks all the digressions. Those, to my mind, are the poem and make a lively satire of it. None of Byron's bugbears escape: Southey, Wordsworth, Castlereagh, Romilly, Lady Byron, Brougham, George the Third, Wellington, women in general and some in particular, come up with shoulders bared and feel the lash. No doubt but he enjoyed the doing of it; he gave himself ample time and space—until toward the end, when he was tired of it and himself and life! Satire was his work: all his best things are in that genre; but, good as they are, they are not the best of their kind. There was nothing of Swift's vitriol in Byron. He was incapable of a 'Tale of a Tub' or a "Gulliver." Spleen, not scorn, drove him; irritability, not conviction of sin.—By Maurice Hewlett in the London Times.

JOHN DAVIDSON

I do not know whether John Davidson, whose life also was tragic, made that "morbid effort," that search for "perfection of thought and feeling," for he is hidden behind failure "to unite it to perfection of form." At 11 one morning I met him in the British Museum reading room, probably in 1894, when I was in London for the production of "The Land of Heart's Desire," but certainly after some long absence from London. "Are you working here?" I asked. "No," he said, "I am loafing, for I have finished my day's work." "What, already?" "I work an hour a day —I cannot work longer without exhaustion, and even as it is, if I meet anybody and get into talk, I cannot write the next day; that is why I loaf when my work is finished." No one had ever doubted his industry, he had supported his wife and family for years by "deviling" many hours a day for some popular novelist. "What work is it?" I said. "I am writing verse," he answered. "I had been writing prose for a long time, and then one day I thought I might just as well write what I liked, as I must starve in any case. It was the luckiest thought I ever had, for my agent now gets me forty pounds for a ballad and I made three hundred out of my last book of verse."—From 'More Memories.' By W. B. Yeats in the Dial.

SINCLAIR LEWIS

His principal preoccupation, however, was with England. He said he had been dreadfully misquoted—that he admired much England, appreciated the value of many English authors, but objected to the mothering attitude various young Englishmen held toward us, the principal targets of his animus being certain young Oxonians, who, we guessed, were Shane Leslie and J. C. Squire. Mr. Lewis said it was all right for Mr. Hugh Walpole to come here to lecture and commended John Galsworthy and W. L. George, but the dollar chasing habits of other Englishmen are accursed, and he referred scathingly to G. K. Chesterton and Margot Asquith, and held up to contempt the American custom of flocking to hear any English novelist the critics said was in town. In an admirable impersonation of an English baron he imitated the English drawl, and then remarked that given a chance to go to tea with an English baron as against meeting certain American authors, the public would worship at the feet of the Englishman.—From the Chicago Daily News.

NORTHCLIFFE

One of my kindest friends in the nineties was Alfred Harmsworth, afterward Lord Northcliffe. Although I saw him but rarely in the three succeeding decades when he came more into the public eye I did see a great deal of him in those earlier years when he was quietly amassing his first fortune as editor and proprietor of Answers and similar publications. He was delighted with The Sketch, and frequently called at my office to express his satisfaction with this or that feature. Together with Max Pemberton, with whom I was in constant friendly relationship in those days (he still remains my very good friend, although we rarely meet), we constantly lunched together at this or that restaurant in Fleet street. His generosity was untiring. I have in my library a fine polar bear skin—his gift—one of the trophies of the Jackson-Harmsworth polar expedition. A companion bear, stuffed, decorates one of his own homes. When I married he gave me by far the most costly present I received, accompanied by the kindest of letteers, which I still retain. But the most interesting moments of those days which I possess is a letter in which he invited me to join his organization, pointing out that already one of two of his "young men.. had amassed considerable wealth and were contemplating parliamentary honors.—From the London Sphere.

THE SIMPLE SETTING

That the poet (who was never in, in the first place, according to Gordon Craig) and even the dramatist are being gradually pushed out of the theater is no great cause for genuine alarm. The artist who expresses himself creatively and movingly through the medium of words will not, one may hazard, find himself utterly at a loss. He is not today finding himself at a loss, as witness the subtle plays of W. B. Yeats performed in a drawing room hung with simple curtains. As a matter of fact, it was Gordon Craig himself who showed us clearly how best to evaluate the play by his production of "Hamlet" at the Moscow Art Theater. Shakespeare and Moliere managed to do the same, the one in an Elizabethan Inn yard and the other in a converted tennis court. Thus the encroaching presentiment is not easily shaken off that too great an emphasis is nowadays being laid upon the purely decorative or pictorial or visual aspects of the theater. It is, to be sure, impossible to turn the hand of exfoliation, as it were back in the theater as in other phases of human activity; the theater goes forward as the law of its own being dictates and as the time allows; on the other hand, it is surely not a litele presumptuous to urge that the theater is exclusively, or almost exclusively, visual in the face of such names as Sophocles, Euripides, Shakespeare, Moliere and Ibsen.—From "Is the Play Vanishing?" By Pierre Loring in the Drama.

HENLEY'S VISION

He had a house now at Mortlake on the Thames with a great ivy tod shadowing door and window, and one night there he shocked and startled a roomful of men by showing how far he could be swept beyond our reach it reveries of affection. The dull man, who had tried to put Wilde out of countenance, suddenly said to the whole room, roused by I cannot remember what incautious remark of mine made to some man at my side, "Yeats believes in magic; what nonsense." Henley said, "No, it may not be nonsense; embarrassed silence, and then somebody spoke of something else and we began to discuss it hurriedly and eagerly.—From "More Memories." By W. B. Yeats in the Dial.

SARAH DUNCAN COTES

Sarah Jeanette Duncan Cotes, one of the most popular Canadian novelists, died in England July 24. She was born in Brantford, Canada, in 1862, and entered the field of journalism when so far as women were concerned "it simply wasn't done." One of her earliest journalistic tasks was the reporting of the cotton centennial in New Orleans for the Toronto Globe and the Memphis Appeal. She was later on the staff of the Washington Post. She returned to Toronto, joined the editorial staff of the Globe, writing under the pen name of Garth Grafton. She served as Parliamentary correspondent for the Montreal Star, and went on a journey-round the world for a syndicate of United States and Canadian papers, writing letters about her travels. Her first book, "A Social Departure," was very successful. In 1891 she married Everard Charles Cotes, when she had met in Calcutta. Her later novels often treated of Indian life, though some had a Canadian setting. Among the best known titles are "An American Girl in London," "An American Girl Abroad," "The Simple Adventures of a Memsahib," "His Honor and a Lady," "The Pool and the Desert," "Set in Authority," "A Burnt Offering," "His Royal Happiness" and "The Imperialist." Her last movel, "Title Clear," was published last June.—From the Publishers' Weekly.

WHEN YOUR LITTLE ONE IS UNWELL

Try This Simple Remedy.

Almost all the ailments of infants and young children arise in the first place from stomach and bowel troubles. It is usually because the child is not digesting its food properly and the bowels are failing to do their work that the little one is fretful and unwell.

In cases such as this nothing is as good as the Canadian children's remedy, Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets are especially made for children, are easy to administer and pleasant in taste, can be given freely without fear of harm to the youngest infant.

No home where there are young children should be without Baby's Own Tablets. They are an ever-ready remedy for infantile indigestion, constipation, colic, diarrhoea, teething pains, croup, colds and worms. Chemists sell them, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

United States Court For China

M. A. Topas and Company were allowed to intervene in the suit of E. Y. Kamorovsky v. the Hartford Fire Insurance Company and the American Foreign Insurance Association by Judge Charles S. Lobingier in the United States Court for China yesterday, but an application of E. O. Golempolski to intervene was denied.

In the decision Judge Lobingier handed down he ruled that Topas and Company were in the position of a "judgment creditor who has also obtained an injunction sequestering the fund which constitutes 'the subject matter' has such an interest." In denying Golempolski's claim Judge Lobingier ruled that he was in the position of one who being "a mere general creditor without other standing is not considered to have an interest 'in the subject matter of litigation' such as will entitle him to intervene."

WON SUIT IN HARBIN

Topas and Company, represented by Mr. Davies of Davies and Bryan, based their claim on the fact that they have already received judgment against the Russian Lloyd Steamship Line in Harbin. Kamorovsky, on the other hand contends that the Russian Lloyd Line was merely acting for him and that he is entitled to the insurance.

Judge Lobingier's full judgment is as follows:

This is an action to recover a sum alleged to be due plaintiff by virtue of a certain fire insurance policy issued "at his request and cost, and for his use and benefit," but, apparently, in the name of a warehouseman with whom the insured property was stored. The insurance company and its agent, both of whom are made defendants, answer, admitting the issuance of the policy, averring that they had been restrained by judicial order from paying part of it and expressing their willingness to pay the balance to the insured. The other parties, M. A. Topas and Company and E. O. Golempolski now seek to intervene for the purpose of sequestering the same fund basing their claim on the following provision:

"Any person who has or claims an interest in the subject matter of litigation, in the success of either of the parties or against both, may, before trial, become a party to the action by joining in the plaintiff's claim of the defendant's resistance or by demanding relief adverse to both."

The former of these claimants alleges that he has obtained a judgment against the insured in the policy above mentioned for an amount equal to something less than two-thirds of the sum in controversy. It also appears from plaintiff's amended complaint (Par. 8) that the said claimant has obtained a temporary injunction against the payment of said sum to the said insured. These facts would seem to afford the first claimant "an interest in the subject matter of litigation" viz, this insurance fund. It is well settled that judgment creditors may have such an interest under a code provision like that above quoted.

The other claimant for intervention does not allege that he is a judgment creditor but that he merely has a suit pending against the said insured who is indebted to him and there is no averment that the insured is insolvent nor that he is without other property to satisfy the alleged indebtedness. Under such circumstances intervention has not been allowed notwithstanding the broad language above quoted: a mere general creditor without other support for his claim is not deemed to have a sufficient "interest in the subject matter." The law applicable to this point has been well stated in a leading case as follows:

"The petition of the creditor, Rawle, does not disclose any right on his part to intervene; it shows that he was a simple contract creditor, holding obligations against the company—but it does not show that any portion of them were secured by any lien upon the mortgaged premises. His intervention is only an attempt of one creditor to prevent another creditor obtaining judgment against the common debtor—a proceeding which can find no support, either in principle or authority. The interest mentioned in the statute, which entitles a person to intervene in a suit between other parties, must be in the matter in litigation, and of such a direct and immediate character that the intervener will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment. To authorise an intervention, therefore, the interest must be that created by a claim to the demand, or some part thereof, in suit, or a claim to, or lien upon, the property, or some part thereof, which is the subject of litigation. No such claim or lien is asserted in the petition of Rawle, and his right to intervene must, in consequence, fail."

The provision first above quoted and upon which the right here claimed is based appears to have been derived ultimately from the legislation of Louisiana and the Supreme Court of that state in construing the term "interest" as used in the provision observed:

"This, we suppose, must be a direct interest by which the intervening party is to obtain immediate gain, or suffer loss, by the judgment which may be rendered between the original parties; otherwise, the strange anomaly would be introduced into our jurisprudence of suffering an accumulation of suits in all instances where doubts might be entertained, or enter into the imagination of subsequent plaintiffs, that a defendant against whom a previous action was under prosecution might not have property sufficient to discharge all his debts. For, as the first judgment obtained might give a preference to the person who should obtain it, all subsequent suitors, down to the last, would have an indirect interest in defeating the action of the first."

As thus interpreted it seems clear that the claimant Golempolski has not shown that he is entitled to intervene in this action and his petition is accordingly denied while that of M. A. Topas & Co., as a judgment creditor and by reason of the injunction above mentioned, is allowed.
